The Worm Turned

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
Lucinda said spitefully: "If Gorgeous Jones is going, we others had as well save our time, temper and wear and tear by staying at home. Not a man there will pay the least attention to us unless she sulks and won't look at anybody."
"Must be aggravatin'," Lem Lenox bantered. "Running against sixty thousand—and father. It must be like bluffin' when the other fellow holds four aces—and a pair of bowie knives."
"You go to Halifax," Lucinda flung at him. Lem bowed grandly, saying: "With all the pleasure in life—if only I'm told what to go for."
"Heap of things you might try to find—almost anywhere," Lucinda returned acridly. "A civil tongue, for instance, and common decency; and not to make a fool of yourself—same as all the rest."
"Dear me, I'm learning things. Until now I didn't dream Halifax kept school for all that," Lem returned, shaking his head, but meekly: "Say, Cindy," he ran on, "let us plot against the Endowed One. Seven sorts of a fool in spite of her thousand-dollar edjycashun she's forever talkin' about. It should be easy—"
"It isn't—just because she is such a fool," Lucinda interrupted. "Tricking her into makin' a show of herself would be the same as eggin' on an idiot—"
"Or even a widower-man?" Lem twinkled wickedly over the query. Lucinda flung an apple at his head—because it was the thing handiest. He caught it with both hands, saying loftily: "Ah, ha, young person, I'm getting on your curves. The white-haired one among Eve's daughters—that's what you must be—tempting one thus with apples from the happy paths of folly—"
"Quarrellin' as usual—you two! I wonder you haven't worn the tips off your tongues at that game," Sue Davis Thompson hurled at them through the opening door, following the speech herself in a gale of laughter, and thereby moving Lem to say: "You forget, Sue Davis, rubber don't disintegrate in the strongest acid."
"Go to—Guinea," from Sue Davis. Lem bowed gravely, saying: "Delighted, but I'm already under orders for Halifax. Ladies, settle it betwixt you which it shall be."
"I say, you better go home—or to heaven," Aunt Peg called from the dining room, where she was setting down cakes hot and spicy, fresh from the oven. Lem sniffed and sighed, saying: "My nose forbids—and always I follow it. Peggy, darling, can't ye produce the cake of peace? Stop our mouths with—what I'm smellin'—and I'll murder the next one who dares to speak a cross word."
"Carried? Unan-i-mously!" Sue Davis shrieked. Aunt Peg came to the door, a glistening white cake held in both hands higher than her head. She shook it and said, smiling and twinkling: "Bait for your betters! Think I'll waste it on you rowdy drap-shots? No, sir-ee, Bob! Billy Barlow can eat every crumb of this; he's so caked hungry, with a wife three months buried. I'm aimin' to cut out Gorgeous Jones with him. Cindy is such a stick-in-the-mud, she won't even try—and I do want that man in the family—his life insurance is so handsome and he's liable to make collection of it easy next time he gets real cussin' mad. Then think of the dignity—Mrs. Judge Barlow! That alone 'll be worth this cake and another—"
"Peg, you mercenary wretch," Lem exploded. Sue Davis couldn't speak for laughing—even Lucinda was giggling nearly as hard as she. It was relief to hear lusty hallos at the lawn gate, even though it meant Lem's ushering in Judge Barlow, red and puffing. Ruddy, massive, quivering when he walked, he smiled at all hands, saying as he sank upon the settee: "Now ef I didn't love everybody in this house I'd have ye up for keepin' sech pizen mean dogs—wouldn't let me come nigh the yard gate, ner get back in my buggy. Chased me inside the horse lot and made me climb a wagon and stood there yappin' and snappin' and dancin' like everything—"
"I know, Cindy's trained 'em that way," Lem interrupted gravely.
Aunt Peg hissed at him: "Liar!"
Sue Davis cried: "Yes, she does, Judge!" Whereat Lucinda, with the courage of desperation, nodded, saying a little thickly: "I see I must explain. I'm trainin' them, you see, to give to poor, dear Gorgeous. We all know how she is bothered with all sorts and conditions of men. Don't believe I could count her proposals since her old man died, yet I'm pretty good at arithmetic over ordinary things. Aunt Peg is right ashy over the way she takes all eyes, and Sue Davis turns like a spitting cat at thought of her. Now, I like her's so naive—almost infantile—"
"Don't try to pull any of that book stuff," Lem managed to gasp. The others were too stunned for speech. The worm had turned with a vengeance. Cindy was running on. "No book stuff at all, Lemuel. Real frozen truth. You see, she confides in me, knowing I don't aspire to rival her anywhere, so I'm going to tell the judge. She said to me only yesterday that he was the man she'd like to marry because he had more money than she did, so would be entirely disinterested."

"Did she say that sure enough?" Judge Barlow asked breathlessly.
"You go ask her if she didn't," Cindy counseled recklessly. "Quick! I'll keep the dogs off while you get a start, and offer both of you advance congratulations."
The judge beamed. "I could kiss ye for that, Cindy," he said, as they went together outside.
"But he won't," said Cindy over her shoulder in a stage whisper. Next minute she was whistling up the dogs.
"A nice kettle o' fish you're fryin'," Aunt Peg flung at her when she came back, head up, eyes dancing. "Fine—if you happen to like suckers," she said airily. "I've made a fine match—and rid the neighborhood of the incubuses that were spoiling everything—"
"The plural is incubi," Lem broke in loftily.
Cindy made a face at him, then turned sternly upon Sue Davis with: "Unless you marry Lem inside of six months I'll tell the curate how daffy you were about him—until you found out his curls were a wig. Understand—I'm desperate—tired of being put upon, picked on by all of you. I've kept Lem in hand for you, to save him from fool entanglements—now I'm through—he may do whatever he pleases—whether it leads to hanging or matrimony."
"Tell me this," Aunt Peg broke in: "Did Gorgeous really say that about Billy Barlow?"
Cindy giggled. "No—she only thought it—without knowing that she did. You see, I'm a mind-reader—when the words are only of one syllable."
"I'm sure he never really thought of her," Aunt Peg speculated.
"But he will—never you fear," Cindy said, rising.
Lem stayed her retreat. "I meant not to tell you till we were all at the party," he said. "But Lee Delbert is coming to it, a whole thousand miles, to find out if you haven't changed your mind. I've been writing him that you would—if he gave you the right chance. By way of helping him to it, hear this: Gorgeous, poor soul, proposed to him outright—after he'd played round with her a bit, trying to make you jealous. He didn't tell me—she herself did. You told me once if one found the values wrong the picture ought to be changed. Willing to take your own medicine?"
"Yes," said Cindy bravely, with a lovely blush. "But don't you dare tell him so before I have the chance."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)
LESSON FOR OCTOBER 7
ABRAHAM, A BLESSING TO THE WORLD

LESSON TEXT—Gen. 12:1-3; 18:17-18; 22:15-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—"In Thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."—Gen. 12:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Being a Blessing to Others.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Became a Blessing to the World.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Abraham, A Religious Pioneer.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Abraham, a Religious Pioneer.

I. Abraham's Ancestors (Josh. 24:2, 14).
Abraham's people were idolaters. Very likely as a young man, he himself worshiped idols. Tradition furnishes us with some interesting stories touching his struggle against idolatry. At any rate, his experience was such as to well qualify him to be the head of a people whose God was the Lord. He knew how hopelessly disastrous idolatry was to the morals of the people, and, therefore, would be able to lead them back to God.
11. Abraham's Call (Gen. 12:1, cf. Acts 7:2-3).
God came to him in Ur of the Chaldees and said unto him: "1. 'Get thee out of thy country.' One is tied to his country with a strong bond. Abraham had lived long enough to have formed strong attachments to his country.
2. 'Get thee out from thy kindred.' Abraham was not only to leave behind him his native land, but his relatives as well, even his father's house. Since his kindred were idolaters, he must leave them. Abraham was to become a pilgrim, to be without a home. Even in Canaan, the only land he ever owned, was a burial place.
3. 'Into the land that I will show thee.' He was not told what or where the land was. He went out not knowing whither he went (Heb. 11:8). While he dwelt in tents during his earthly sojourn, yet "he looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God" (Heb. 8:10). And thus he was a typical believer called out from his family and country, and renouncing idolatry, he walked by faith, testifying to his and succeeding generations to the faithfulness of God. It costs to obey God, but there is an abundant recompense.
111. God's Promise to Abraham (Gen. 12:2-3; 18:17-18).
1. The Father of a Great Posterity (v. 2). This has been literally fulfilled. He was not to go out primarily for what he could get, but for what he could do. The minister and missionary forget their own personal blessings in the supreme joy of their converts who are the fruits of their labor. No name in all history equals that of Abraham in its honorable influence. His is the name of honor among Jews, Mohammedans and Christians. They all acknowledge him as father.
2. A Blessing to Others (vv. 2, 3). He was not only to become great and to share God's blessings, but to be a blessing to others. He has become a blessing to countless multitudes. This is the prevailing law of the spiritual life—being blessed to be a blessing. Those who respond to this law become the very touchstone of God, so precious that God will bless them who bless them, and curse those who curse them. God makes common cause with His people. So vitally is He one with them that it is a serious thing to mistreat them. To maltreat God's children is to lift the hand against God. No one who goes against Him can prosper. Not only is this so with reference to wilful acts against His children, but neglect or refusal to do good to them. Christ regards all acts for or against them as for or against Him.
IV. God Testing Abraham (Gen. 22:2-18).
Abraham's faith was shown in that he obeyed the call of God and left his land and kindred, but his faith reached its highest point in offering Isaac. For many years, he had waited for the fulfillment of God's promise as to his heir. At last that promise was a reality. Abraham's hope was not the ordinary hope which fills the heart of every father; that his name and work may be perpetuated through his son. A new nation and the world's Savior were to spring up from Abraham through this son. Through this great ordeal, his faith responded enabling him to believe that God would give Isaac back from the dead (Heb. 11:17-19). God tries all His children. The more important, the more severe the trial.

FASHIONS RULED BY THE LAW

Even Handkerchiefs at One Time Were Regulated by Statute—High Hats Caused Sensation.

As far back as the reign of Edward I there was a form of jumper in vogue which was known as the cote-hardie.
In Henry IV's time the scalloping of ladies' skirts was not allowed, for in 1463 a law was passed against "the cutting of the edges of sleeves or the borders of gowns into the form of letters, leaves or other devices."
Even handkerchiefs were once regulated by law. There was an edict dated June 2, 1785, and issued by Louis XVI at the request of Marie Antoinette, which decreed that "the length of handkerchiefs shall be equal to their width." Since then they have been square; and it seems likely that they will remain so.
The top hat was first introduced in England by a Strand haberdasher named Hetherington. Such a large crowd was attracted that he was summoned on a charge of breach of the peace and was required to give bonds to the value of £500.
A law was passed in the reign of Henry I which even went so far as to prohibit the wearing of long hair.
Such articles as boots did not escape the eagle eye of the lawmakers, as in an edict dated 1465 people were forbidden to wear boots the pykes or points of which exceeded two inches in length. Anyone breaking this law would be cursed by the clergy and fined 20 shillings.
Long trousers appear to have been first worn about 1812, and were at first the subject of much amusement. They were made fairly straight, with a strap fastening them down at the bottom—a fashion that lasted some thirteen years.
Then came the pegtop style, roomy at the thighs and tight-fitting round the ankles, which were discarded in 1850 in favor of the bell bottoms. These were much the same as sailors wear today. A little later the pegtops again became the fashion, this time without the strap under the boot.
Finally, about 1875, "bags," just straight cut funnels, became the craze. These were the forerunners of the present-day style, the most marked distinction being the "permanent turn-ups."—London Tit-Bits.

Essential to Profitable Farming

The Utility Express Truck $550 Chassis Only f. o. b. Flint, Mich.
Fits any Standard Truck Body

No business can succeed unless its product is profitably sold. Most farms have a fine production department but no sales department. They grow crops and stock bought by buyers who set the price.
One of the chief reasons for this unprofitable situation is the average farmer's poor facilities for moving his crops or stock to the place where he can sell or ship to the best advantage. Because of the time and expense of horse delivery millions of dollars worth of produce spoils annually on American farms. The saving of this waste would, in many cases, change a losing farm to a money-maker.
This low-priced, high-grade, reliable truck was designed as a money-saver and money-maker for farmers and business houses needing fast low-cost haulage of heavy or bulky goods. It fits any standard type of ton truck body. Ask any Chevrolet dealer for price of the style of body you require.

Basing conclusions on what is considered reliable data, an English librarian estimates that since the invention of printing in Europe in the Fifteenth century the output of the world's book presses has amounted to about 16,500,000 titles, of which some 4,400,000 have been printed since 1900. The librarian believes that perhaps 20,000 of all the books printed still possess value.—Scientific American.
