Edible Drinking Cup Appears.

With the increase in popularity of water ices among patrons of refreshment pushcarts, ball park caterers and other vendors the edible drinking cup is appearing. It is of graham cracker ingredients and some are lined with chocolate.

Early in the season water ices were served in paper or paraffin cups. As these were not consumable they created a problem of litter. The new kind of cup, like the cone for ice cream, provides a cake for the water ice. It is also finding a field as a container and accompaniment for soft drinks.—New York Sun and Globe.

"Sir Basil Zaharof, who has succeeded the Blanc family as the principal owner of Monte Carlo," said a Chicagoan, "took me one night through the gorgeous gambling rooms of the Monte Carlo casino. We halted a while at a roulette table. An Englishman was winning tremendously there. Finally the man cashed in."

"Goodness!" I said. "What a haul that lucky bird has made!"

"Oh," said Sir Basil, "that's nothing. It makes no difference to the Casino. It's just a bit of our money sleeping out for the night."—Chicago Daily News.

Trade Revival Vital to U. S.

Far away, but eventually affects your pocketbook: Great Britain, in the first six months of 1923, exported more than three times as much coal as in the first six months of last year. Also, correspondingly, nearly four times as much iron and steel, eight times as much cotton goods and nearly six times as much woolsens.

An English revival of trade is important to us because her ability to pay what she owes Uncle Sam depends largely on her export markets.

WHEN one is very young, in a world of wonderful things to see and play with, furbelows are a nuisance—unless they are of the kind that are fastened on and can't come off. Everything else has a brief career and is sure to be lost, so the list of detachable belongings, for the very little miss, may well be brief. But she requires in hair bows and hair ribbons, combs, berets, sashes, bands of ribbon, besides sweaters and a little jewelry, besides mittens, leggings and muffs, in wintertime, and adorable bonnets and hats all the time.

We must concede to French designers the happiest faculty for making lovely clothes for children. They are making cashmere and wool crepe for dresses and broadcloth for both coats and dresses. On the coats one is apt to find narrow fringes of monkey fur, outlining bands on the sleeves or body of the coat, and a tiny muff of the same fur—to go with the coat. Rows of little buttons, in a contrasting color, decorate bands of material, and adorn coats and hats to match. These same designers made much of leggings that are fastened with a row of small buttons up the side of the leg. They are

As a decorative feature for little girls' clothes, nothing is more used than ribbon which makes sashes and ties and trims frocks, haltered blouses, edged into narrow ribbons, bands, festoons and bows of it applied to frocks, flower and fruit motifs, cut out and used in the place of embroidery, vary the simple wardrobe of little ladies.

Wherewithal shall we be clothed for those hours of the day spent within the walls of home and the bosom of the family—or other intimates? It all depends upon how we must occupy ourselves during these hours and therefore designers of negligees have made a wide variety of garments, keeping in mind that it is the mission of such apparel to be decorative and cheerful. Inspirations is drawn from many sources; for the fancy of creators has a free range when it roams in search of ideas.

For the first hours of the day nothing has superseded the light-colored breakfast coats of silk (usually taffeta) adorned with ruffles and frills of silk or of lace. Of course the graceful, side tie fastening was appropriated by the makers of negligees and it proves an additional attraction in these dainty coats. Darker silks are chosen for pullman robes and they are rivaled by mercerized cotton corduroy in the better qualities. One of these is shown in the picture and serves the same purpose as the breakfast coat or the kimono. These corduroys make very handsome robes and coats, with the suppleness and luster of silk, and they sell at a low price. They are shown in such rich shades as rose, orchid purple, French blue and henna and some of them have thin, silky linings, matching them in color.

In more pretentious negligees of georgette, crepe de chine, tinted laces and the like, designers follow classic lines in the silhouette and are devoted to the long and graceful wing sleeve. Pale colors are used and new style points appear in side draperies or draperies drawn to the middle of the front, in the Egyptian manner.

"From my long experience as a nurse I do not hesitate to say that I consider Tanlac Nature's most perfect remedy," recently declared Mrs. I. A. Borden, 425 Pontius Ave., Seattle, Wash. Mrs. Borden is a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, Chicago, and her wide experience in caring for the sick lends particular emphasis to her statement.

"I have used Tanlac exclusively for seven years in the treatment of my charity patients," continued Mrs. Borden, "and my experience has been that, for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly and for toning up the system in general, Tanlac has no equal. Recently I had a woman patient who could not even keep water on her stomach for fifteen minutes. Six bottles of Tanlac fixed her up so she could eat absolutely anything. Another patient, a man, seemed unable to digest any food at all. Three bottles of Tanlac put him in such fine shape he went back to work. These two cases are typical. My confidence in Tanlac is unlimited."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

The comedy cinema actor stopped a man he knew. "Look here," he began, "I understand you said last night that I have no sense of humor. A remark of that kind, made publicly, in the presence of other people, is very damaging to a man in my position, and—"

"Hold on," interrupted the other. "I never said you had no sense of humor. What I said was that you had no sense of humor."

"Ah!" beamed the actor, "I thought there must be some mistake. I felt certain you would never run down a pal behind his back."

"A special ticket," he gasped in dismay. "What would I do that for? His season ticket hasn't expired yet!"
