Proves One thing. A man who laughs at jokes at least proves he is content and cheerful disposition.

Noteworthy Proverb.

The gown is his who wears it, and the world is his that enjoys it.

Imagination Always Working.

A man does not succeed in business by the ordinary virtues catalogued by Samuel Smiles, but by the extraordinary qualities of vision and imagination, and you can't imagine

It isn't the heat, it's the continuity.

The hottest thing in dog days is a pup tent.

A man can sleep better when the coal bin no longer yawns.

Short skirts are coming back. They haven't been away very long.

The honeymoon is over the first time he addresses her as "old girl."

An empty coal bin turns a mid-summer night's dream into a nightmare.

Nothing takes any more patience than watching a roasting ear round into form.

Some European nations won't back down and others won't back up. It's a gift.

After some recent court decisions the dictionary definitions of gambling need revision.

The fellow who didn't go on a vacation can't escape the stories of the man who did.

Race-track gamblers have tried out horses and dogs. Goats would be more appropriate.

It takes many a mickle to make a muckle, but you can get a bale of rubles for the muckle.

The most sensational publicity of stageland will go to the actress who has never been divorced.

That dentist who says teeth cause most of our breakdowns hasn't examined any of our laws lately.

The world grows more prosaic as the years pass, and now the only kissing game left is French diplomacy.

The old-fashioned man who likes clinging-vine women has a son who prefers the clinging-skirt kind.

The one redeeming feature about radicalism in American politics is that it is always at its height in off-years.

There may be a hay shortage, as predicted, but this seems likely to be a good year for the straw vote crop.

It would help a great deal if the society page would tell where the mosquito family expects to spend the summer.

In politics it is a good plan to keep one's feet on the ground all the time and one's ear to the ground half the time.

Golfing knickers having become so common it ought to be an easy transition to knee breeches for evening wear.

That's the way it goes. When it isn't the buying power of the dollar, it is the buying power of a bushel of wheat.

If it is true that a Louisiana father traded his baby son for a horse, the baby looks to have got the better of the deal.

The way to abolish war is to remove the conviction that we could lick any other country without straining ourselves.

The irritating quality of passive resistance is appreciated only by France and the man who has tried to crank a used car.

If there is no system of communication between insects, how do all the mosquitoes know where the lawn fete is to be held?

People who live all year at a summer resort must be surprised when they see the place described in an advertising folder.

If some aviator wants to set a record for a long-distance flight, why doesn't he get up a machine patterned after the Dove of Peace?

There being but one mother ship of airplanes in the American navy one hopes none of these birth control advocates gets her ear.

Europeans think this country is indifferent to their strife, but they should know we do a lot of worrying about our own troubles.

It is estimated that 17 per cent of the June brides have now learned that the masculine nature does not yearn for mayonnaise dressing.

Germany now has in circulation 20,241,782,968,000 marks. A billionaire in Germany is probably too poor to afford a stogie once a month.

If those refiners shut down their institutions to curtail the gasoline supply, the automobilist might retaliate with a few gasless Sundays and see how they like it.

One thing those alarmists overlook when they talk about a Bolshevik revolution in this country is the fact the United States is not inhabited by Russians.

Plans are afoot to develop grand opera singers in America, out of good United States material. This would deprive Europe of a valuable source of revenue and still further enfeeble the Home Stealers.

The hermit crab is a confirmed user of second-hand homes, says Nature Magazine. It lives in old snail shells. Here it is protected from enemies, since only its forelegs and pincers protrude.

Financial Invention Needed.
A device having been invented for pulling automobiles out of holes, it is suggested that a more popular appliance would be one that would pull automobile owners out of holes.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Value of Sentimentality.
We often hear it said that sentiment is nothing more than a species of mandarin self-flattery, but be sure this is a cynical view of it. Whenever we sentimentalize we plow up the moral soil within us.—Henry Waterson.
