

A Few Facts of Interest About
Laurel Park Estates

"The Scenic Suburb in the Land of the Sky"

IT has been called, "The South's Most Commanding Community Development," this attractive highland suburb adjoining the city of Hendersonville, in Western North Carolina. Just ten minutes' drive from the central portions of this thriving mountain municipality and you are traversing a concrete highway that leads into a veritable paradise of natural loveliness. LAUREL PARK ESTATES literally beggars description. Writers of national fame, word painters of note, have attempted to do justice to the panorama that spreads on both sides of this marvelous roadway as it spirals its way to the crest of Jump-Off Mountain, the peak from which it is possible to get a complete circular view of the famous mountains of the Blue Ridge—an uninterrupted, sweeping view in every direction. It is on this peak that the great hotel, HENDERSONVILLE'S FLEETWOOD, is being built by Commodore J. Perry Stolz. This hotel will be opened formally on July the fourth.

The Golf Course

Designed by Donald Ross, when complete, this course will be listed among the sportiest courses in the country. It will be finished at a cost of over $100,000—18 holes of perfect golf.

Seven Mirror Lakes

form a pleasing addition to Laurel Park's list of attractions.

They fish, swim, hunt, ride astride and in motors over highways of velvet smoothness. They play tennis. They golf. They hike through valleys and climb the mountain sides. Polo is a coming sport, additional facilities being provided that it may be enjoyed without stint by those who like its strenuousness. Summer dances flourish, the finest dance orchestras from North and South coming to Hendersonville to provide the best harmonies for nimble-footed devotees. In every respect, LAUREL PARK ESTATES is providing for the recreational side of a home life and its comfort and security as well.
