

Boy Golfer Lauded

Ronald Mackenzie, the boy golfer of Washington, D. C., received great praise from the English newspapers for his expert playing in the British amateur golf championship at Murrayfield, when he defeated W. J. Guild of Murrayfield, and won 3 and 2. Mackenzie made the first nine holes in 38, which included an eagle and three birdies.

BASEBALL SQUIBS

The Blue Ridge league is employing the double umpire system this year.

Harry Albers, star second baseman on the St. Xavier college team, with the Cincinnati Reds.

The current season is the best the National league ever has seen, says President John Haydler.

Pete Donohue, of the Cincinnati Reds, has pitched twenty-one consecutive victories over the Phillies.

Clyde Sukeforth, catcher from the Cincinnati Nationals, has been bought by the Minneapolis Association club.

In a recent game between Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, Umpire Jim Sweeney was struck six times by foul tips.

Babe Ruth is definitely coming back. There was a picture of him in the paper the other day signing a bushel of baseballs.

McNeely has apparently won himself a permanent place in the Washington outfield this year through his consistent hitting.

Seventy-five per cent of a ball team's success depends upon its pitching, according to Joe McGinnity, the "Iron Man of Baseball."

Another current double-play combination that lacks some of the haunting music of the older trios is Bluege to S. Harris to J. Harris.

In no sport but baseball do athletic heroes hold over for more than a few years. Boxing, football and swimming stars have a brief reign.

A cynic is one who preserves half a dozen copies of the baseball expert's pre-season prophecy and mails them to him one by one during the year.

After twenty-two years of service, "Doc" Crandall is still puzzling batters in the Pacific Coast league and hopes to win his usual twenty games for the Los Angeles club.

Unlike most baseball catchers, "Mickey" O'Neil, Brooklyn backstop, has the hands and fingers of a clerical worker. They are as perfect as when he first started in the National league six years ago.

Most Valuable Player in League

Trees Need Thinning
Most trees need thinning, rather than pruning, which means cutting off many small limbs or twigs. On old, sod-bound trees, pruning often resolves itself into a matter of maintaining the balance between the feeding and fruiting parts of the tree.
