Health Officer Delivers Address At Book Club

Seven Members Volunteer Services to Health Department

Seven members of Beaufort Book club volunteered their service to the health department at the meeting Thursday night at the Inlet inn, following a talk by Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer.

The women will assist the clerical staff of the health department only at certain times during the year, Dr. Ennett explained, when numerous letters go out.

Volunteers are Mrs. W. H. Taylor, Mrs. T. A. Richards, Mrs. H. D. Loftin, Mrs. Elmore Davis, Mrs. M. L. Davis, Mrs. G. W. Duncan, and Miss Lena Duncan.

Dr. Ennett spoke on the work of the health department following dinner and a short business meeting.

Health departments became a necessity, the doctor said, when towns and cities came into being. The major duty of the first health departments was to quarantine persons with contagious diseases, a duty that was unnecessary when families were relatively isolated on farms.

Following this came the idea of preventive medicine as a necessity in public health.

Commenting on the county health program, Dr. Ennett commended the board of commissioners for their support.

"I doubt if there is a county in the state with similar financial conditions that is doing as much as Carteret county in the way of health work," the health officer said.

Dr. Ennett described the physical make-up of the health department staff: the health officer, sanitarian, two nurses, and a secretary.

He explained control processes of venereal disease and tuberculosis and mentioned that eventually health departments will institute a clinic for elderly people who will be told how to lengthen their years.

In answer to a question by a book club member regarding physical examination of domestic help, the health officer said that every servant employed in a home is required to have a checkup at the health department.

Briefly, the three major duties of the health department, Dr. Ennett related, are education, immunization, and sanitation.

During the business meeting Mrs. M. L. Davis reminded each member that their contribution toward the Beaufort summer recreation fund was $3. Each civic organization in the town has been requested to give $100.

Mrs. Davis also relayed a request which came to her regarding a $25 donation for maintenance of the Scout building.

NEW YORK — (AP) — One out of every three U. S. children who die during school age is an accident victim.

The northern part of Times Square in New York was once known as Longacre square after the street in London.

Ancient lake dwellers apparently fed domesticated cattle in part on fish.
