

Universal Military Training and Draft

DEWEY—Has favored UMT and a limited selective service.
STASSEN — Proposes "a manpower program in which young men would register with congress deciding how many should be called each year."
TAFT — Opposes UMT but says temporary selective service may be necessary.
WARREN — For UMT "because it is a democratic process which calls upon rich and poor alike to serve equally in country's defense."
VANDENBERG — Has taken no position on this question. (His office says he's been too busy guiding Republican participation in a bipartisan foreign policy to become involved in domestic issues.)
MARTIN — Has opposed UMT but will follow Republican party line on limited draft.
MACARTHUR—Has taken no position on various issues.

Foreign Policy

DEWEY — Has urged a "United States of Europe as a strong third power devoted to the cause of peace." For firm policy toward Russia.
STASSEN — Would abolish veto power in United Nations. Favors U.S. military alliance with countries of western Europe.
TAFT — Has urged United Nations charter be rewritten with legal teeth in it. Wants United Nations to lay down rules of international conduct to be administered by impartial tribunal, with or without Russia.
WARREN — Says United Nations "should be put to test of dealing with aggression."
VANDENBERG — Leader of Republican participation in bipartisan foreign policy... pushed bill to finance European Recovery Program through Senate... favors "strong stand for peace which includes justice and honor."
MARTIN — Has said "America must help Europe and the Orient but not as a world WPA unlimited."
TAFT-Hartley Labor Act
DEWEY — "It's a good law. But I'm sure it has some faults. My party will be more ready to repair those defects than the Democrats have been with their labor legislation."
STASSEN — Would amend law to allow union publications to support political candidates, ease restrictions on union shops, and require union officials to sign non-Communist affidavits only if they are accused of Communism.
TAFT — Says "the country and labor union members themselves are finding that the law is working because it is based on justice and equality while protecting every basic right which labor leaders have fought for."
WARREN — Says "the law should be continually re-examined with no hesitation in amending it to correct deficiencies demonstrated by experience."
VANDENBERG — No comment on it... voted for passage of law, also voted to override Truman veto.
MARTIN — Was a leading supporter of bill in house.

Inflation

DEWEY—Has favored tax reduction, less government spending, and public debt reduction as check on inflation.
STASSEN—Has advocated limiting consumer credit, a check on extreme speculation, and legislation "to ban excessive inventories that result in unbridled hoarding and profiteering." Opposes price and rationing controls.
TAFT—Favored tax reduction and cut in non-defense spending. Against government price and rationing controls.
WARREN — Says "if voluntary measures prove ineffectual to check inflation, we must resort to legal measures—export and credit controls, or price, wage, and use controls."

VANDENBERG — Has taken no position on inflation but voted for tax reduction.
MARTIN— Outspoken advocate of Republican tax-cutting measure. Has said "We can bring down prices by stepping up production and cutting government spending." Opposed price controls, saying "competition is better regulator than government bureaus."
Palestine Partition
DEWEY — Favors it.
STASSEN — For partition. Has urged United Nations police force, with American troops participating.
TAFT — Favors it.
WARREN — Has taken no position on Palestine but has expressed hope that United Nations would bring about a just decision.

MARTIN—Has favored partition.

Communist Party in U.S.

STASSEN — Favors outlawing Communist party.
TAFT — Opposes outlawing party.
VANDENBERG — Has taken no position but has said "we shall not surrender to Communist conspiracies in the United States."
MARTIN—Has taken no position veto.
