

State Exceeds Cancer Fund Goal

MOUNT AIRY—North Carolina has exceeded its goal of $200,424.57 in the 1948 drive for funds to fight cancer.

News that this state has topped its goal was released here today by Mrs. George E. Marshall, State commander, and John D. Larkins, Jr., State Campaign chairman. Complete figures are not as yet available, due to the fact that many counties are still working on their drive and are as yet unreported with their totals, the Society officials said.

"We have never been in doubt about realizing our goal," Mrs. Marshall declared, "because we had faith in our workers and in North Carolina's desire to help control the menace of cancer."

Chairman Larkins said, "Cancer is annually killing approximately 2,600 men, women and children in North Carolina, and at least 900 of those lives might be saved. When we reduce these deaths we will also counteract the horrible fear-shadow surrounding cancer. We feel North Carolina is doing its part in this fight."

More than $50,000 of the total raised will be directed to the $5,000,000 national research program to find the cause and cure for all types of cancer. The balance will defray the cost of the vital educational attack against cancer and the service program for cancer victims.

North Carolina is among the leaders in the United States, having been in thirteenth place the past two weeks, and with a strong possibility of going higher, according to Mrs. Marshall.

Within the state the most successful campaign was carried out in Vance County, where Commander Mrs. Lucius Smith and Chairman Dover R. Fouts raised $408.51 against their goal of $200.00.

Mrs. Marshall added that the Society's State Executive Committee will meet soon to outline the North Carolina Control Program for the next twelve months.
