

Egg Production Increases During Past 14 Years

COLLEGE STATION, Raleigh—Although fewer farms are producing eggs commercially today, production per farm has increased greatly during the past 14 years, according to Charles E. Clark, farm management specialist at State college.

He said recent reports of the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that for the nation as a whole, from 1934 to 1944 the number of farms producing eggs dropped from about 5 1/2 million to 4 3/4 million, or about 15 per cent. During the same period total production of eggs rose more than 50 per cent.

Reasons behind these trends may be found in larger flocks on fewer farms, Mr. Clark said. In 1934, he pointed out, 80 per cent of the farms had less than 100 birds and produced 37 per cent of the eggs. In 1944, 72 per cent of the farms had less than 100 birds and produced only 27 per cent of the eggs. Farms having more than 200 birds increased from 6 per cent in 1934 to more than 11 per cent in 1944.

These figures, the specialist asserted, mean that the proportion of eggs produced by larger farms increased from 36 per cent in 1934 to almost 50 per cent in 1944. These changes, he added, were more pronounced in the New England, Middle Atlantic, and North Central States.

"Poultry producers in North Carolina must realize," Mr. Clark declared, "that larger flocks may be made efficient for commercial production of eggs. A flock of 300 or more birds will utilize labor more efficiently in the poultry enterprise. Particular attention should be given to methods which save labor, such as storage of feed for ease in handling, feeding, and method of supplying water."
