Peaufort Leads Way to Good Government

Bookkeeping is a nuisance; besides that, bookkeeping requires intelligence.

Everyone knows how very simple and pleasant it is to spend a sum of money without bothering beforehand to account for every fraction of intended expenditure. That way one has all the fun of spending and, perhaps, that little extra thrill of spending here, there, and any old way.

But that kind of delightful, unpremeditated spending always leaves the spender with an awful financial hang-over. Unless, of course, the spender has a good, kind, rich grandpa in the back-Figround who always comes forward with another big wad of dough.

No one should be envious of anyone who has that kind of grandpa nor be envious of anyone seeking that kind of grandpa whether in the form of parking meters, race tracks or ABC

But no one will deny that it is very foolish to depend on the continual generosity of grandpa or to believe that he will always be rolling in dough

The town of Beaufort has taken just that attitude-that it is foolish to depend on grandpa. And it is just as well because Beaufort doesn't have a grandpa shelling out two percent of a big income every night rain or shine.

So what did Beaufort do?

Beaufort sat down with pencil and paper and reckoned every item of necessary expenditure for the next twelve months. In the process Beaufort found that, in view of the possible SURE income certain "necessary" items of expenditure could well be andone without

The job Beaufort did is generally known as bookkeeping. The doing required intelligence

Come next June 30, 1949, Beaufort will be in the black. It won't have any financial hang-over and its taxpayers will have known what happened to every penny of their tax money.

If you want to see exactly what Beaufort has done, besides comply with a state law designed to protect taxpayers against spendthrifts, look at the itemized Beaufort budget on the right hand side of this page.

Have Any Old Rags and Paper?

During the second world war there were pleas for scrap netal, waste fat (the government is still asking housewives to save it), and waste paper.

Spurred by the urgency of winning the war, many citizens cooperated. On Sunday Morehead City Jaycees are conducting a rag and scrap paper drive and they are hoping residents will resurrect some of that "we've got to win the war" energy and bundle up old magazines, newspapers, and clothes that have passed "wearable days."

Trucks donated by the Whiteway laundry and Clyde Jones Gas and Appliance company will start their tour around the town

The Jaycem will sell the rags and paper to obtain money to carry on their civic betterment program.

They are merely asking for the money we ordinarily throw away so that they can make Morehead City a pleasanter place in
