Farm Tenure Bulletins Available for Distribution

COLLEGE STATION, Raleigh—Two important farm tenure bulletins are now available for distribution, according to G. W. Forester, chairman of the Southeast Land Tenure Committee.

One of the publications, entitled "The Farm Tenure Situation in the Southeast," will be of special interest to students of farm tenure, agricultural statesmen, and administrators. The second, "Farm Inheritance and Settlement of Estates," will be of interest to farmers, bankers, lawyers, and others dealing directly with the settlement of estates. The latter bulletin is not a handbook or guide to the settlement of estates, Mr. Forester said, but is a study of the problem and its significance in our rural economy.

Requests for copies of the publications should be addressed to Agricultural Editor, State College Station, Raleigh.

Italian Art Experts Find Titian Canvas in Modena

MODENA, Italy — (AP) — A canvas hanging in the apartment of an opera singer here has been identified by art experts as the work of the immortal Titian.

The painting, the property of Baritone Vincenzo Giacciardi, depicts Christ with a rope around his neck being dragged to face Pontius Pilate.

A work on a like subject in the San Rocco church at Venice had always been deemed to be Titian's, and the one here a copy. But the art experts, headed by some of Italy's most reputable critics, recently decided the Modena canvas was the original and the Venetian one the copy.

Soon after they passed judgment, a group of art lovers from Venezia was reported to have offered Giacciardi 50 million lire ($83,000) for the canvas. However, the singer told them he planned ultimately to present it to Modena's civic museum.

3,000 Naval Reservists Went Through Training Periods During 1947-48

NORFOLK, Va. — Nearly 3,000 Naval reservists in the Fifth Naval District dug their uniforms out of mothballs during the fiscal year ending June 30 to return to active duty for two weeks training.

The Fifth Naval district comprises Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and eastern North Carolina.

During the 12-month period 905 officers, including 496 aviators and ground officers connected with air groups, completed the two weeks training program. Enlisted personnel numbered 2,071, including those with air groups.

Of the 2,976 in the district receiving training, 2,322 were connected with the 12 organized reserve units in the district. The remaining 654 were volunteer reservists.

Because of the number of highly specialized ranks and rates in the volunteer division, approximately 95 per cent of these officers and men were trained at activities ashore.

The organized reserves, however, generally are shipboard classifications and about 90 per cent of these officers and men received shipboard duty.

Cruises left Norfolk for training duty made liberty in ports of the West Indies, Panama, Bermuda, and several more northern ports, including Argentina and Nova Scotia.

These reservists were part of the 85,000 throughout the country who took the training duty during the year.
