little trouble, the classification can be raised to six."
The Javees would then, through the medium of the inter-civic group, concern the efforts of Beaufort's other organization toward improving Beaufort's insurance classification, getting lower rates, and saying citizens thousands of dollars.
Mr. Walker stated that the new Chamber of Commerce has been receiving much cooperation and help from Robert G. Lowe, secretary of the Morehead City chamber, and proposed that the two groups hold "quarterly joint board meetings" because the two towns are economically dependent on one another.
Mr. Walker called the Rotary club "largely responsible for the inception of the Beaufort Chamber of Commerce," which he referred to as a group of "men working together to make their community a better place in which to live and to make a living."
In his talk, the Chamber of Commerce manager traced the inception and history of the chamber from the medieval fairs and merchant guilds up to the present-day chamber, saying that the first chamber was organized in Marseille, France, in the 15th century.
Elaborating on his previous definition of the chamber, Mr. Walker listed among the duties and advantages of a chamber of commerce such things as "putting on expositions of the products of local industries, conducting industrial safety schools, providing facts for new industrial prospects, making housing surveys, arranging conferences of businessmen and farmers, good will tours of neighboring cities, inviting tourists, meetings and conventions to the town, stimulating efforts to provide more parking space, a city auditorium, new town hall, improvements at the airport, modern store fronts, wider streets, doing the scores of things that add up to better living in a better community."
In carrying out these things, Mr. Walker declared, the members must write up a program of work, limited only by the finances and the manpower.
"The important man," he said, "in the success of the chamber is the man on the committee," rather than any single officer or director.

Price Isn't Right, Leaf Growers Say

Several complaints about tobacco selling prices have been received from Carteret farmers, B. J. May, production marketing administrator, revealed today.
The average support price of 43.9 per pound is 3.9 cents better than last year's figure, but local growers don't seem to be satisfied.
"The average farmer doesn't think tobacco is bringing as much as it should relative to cost of production and other prices," May stated.
Four hundred farmers in this county have sold their tobacco on the eastern market. No figures are available as yet on the number of pounds sold. Grown in the county this year were 1,470 acres.

to been given a negative diagnosis.
Regarding the polio situation, Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, said yesterday that parents should keep children on home premises and cooperate with the health department in polio control.
He expressed the hope that no legal ban would be necessary on movies, Sunday schools, children's parties, and other gatherings. The present restrictions apply to all children under 16.
Dr. Ennett said also, "There have been so many inquiries and so many rumors about the opening of school" that he felt called upon to make a statement on that score.
He continued, "The Oct. 1 date set by the Board of Health in a meeting Aug. 24, subject to change, still stands. The Board of Health in a future meeting will determine the exact date and the public will be informed immediately.
"In the meantime," he added, "the public should wait patiently, realizing that the safety of children is of paramount importance."

BIDS WANTED Sealed bids will be received at the City Hall,

Capt. Hatsel

tain Charles I. Hatsel, terapin culturist and foreman since 1902.
"The care of the young and adult terapin, the actual work of carrying on the experiments, and the keeping of the original records were the responsibility of Captain Hatsel until his retirement on his 69th birthday in February, 1947, after 45 years of service devoted to the building of Terrapin Town and its tenants."
"Cap'n" Hatsel began as a laborer in 1902 and rose to foreman with the fish culturist rating. His efficiency ratings were good to excellent during his half-century of service.
The award ceremony at the Hatsel home was witnessed by Mrs. Charlie Hatsel, the former Miss Marie Clawson of Beaufort; by their sons, Francis, Carl, and Henry Hatsel, and their wives; and by granddaughter Elaine Alice Hatsel, age 2 1/2 months, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hatsel.
Also present were the members of "Cap'n" Charlie's crew: J. Vance Faulford, superintendent; Alonzo Thomas, chief clerk; and Charlie Hawkins, custodian.
In presenting the awards, Dr. Prytherch emphasized the importance that "Cap'n" Hatsel's services have been to fishery biological research in this country. He is remembered and appreciated by scientific men "all over the country," Dr. Prytherch stated.
"Cap'n" Hatsel expressed his appreciation to Dr. Prytherch for the honors and requested that his appreciation be expressed to the Federal Government.

Earl Noe, 13, Found By Police Thursday

Earl Mack Noe, 13-year-old Morehead City boy, who disappeared from his home Wednesday night was found at 2:30 a. m. Thursday under a little tent near the Coast Guard storage depot, state highway patrolmen reported.
