City Finds Crime Doesn't Pay
ELDORADO, Ill. (AP) — Experimentally, the city of Eldorado fixed a five cent fine on each motorist who either failed to deposit a nickel in their parking meters or upon overtime violators. The violators were even permitted to pay the nickel fine in any handy meter and not be haled to the city hall. Revenue fell off one-third during the two-week trial. So the city council voted to get tough with violators—and fine 'em two bits.

Young People Conduct Services

"You've preached the best sermon you ever preached," the Rev. Winfrey Davis, pastor of the First Baptist church, Beaufort, was told Sunday after young people conducted all services for "Youth Day."

The performance of the young people under the pastor's direction. Graydon Paul felt, was a more convincing sermon than any preached from the pulpit. Many other members expressed similar approval.

The young people, most of them teenagers, settled all anxieties that the pastor had had about the fact that the polio ban prevented the holding of "Youth Day" earlier when college youth could have participated. They carried off the Sunday school, morning worship, Training Union and evening worship services in a highly professional manner.

Gary Copeland acted as superintendent of the Sunday School.
