Voters in the county have only two more Saturdays in which to register for an election on two bond issues and a gas tax increase. The election will be held Saturday, June 4.

Registration will be held tomorrow and the following Saturday at the court house and challenge day will take place on the Saturday after that. There is little likelihood of any registration being challenged since not one has been challenged in the last eight years, F. R. Seeley, elections board chairman said.

Two bond issues and an increase in the gasoline tax will be voted on in the election. The first issue is for 200 million dollars to build secondary roads in the state. Tied in with the issue is a one cent per gallon tax increase which will be automatic if the road bond is approved.

The second bond issue is for 25 million dollars to improve or build new schools in the state.

Both bond issues were hotly contested in this year's Legislature but were finally passed for the voters approval after Governor Kerr Scott worked strenuously for their passage. Legislative observers said the one cent gasoline tax increase was tied in with the road bond issue in order to give it less chance of gaining a majority in the election.

Late Blight Hits County Potatoes

Late blight of potatoes has already made its appearance on a number of Carteret county farms, reports R. M. Williams, county farm agent.

Leading potato growers state that this is the earliest date that this disease has ever attacked the potato crops in the county. The disease spreads very rapidly during cool wet weather.

The blight is usually seen first on the margin of the lower leaves and works inward until the entire leaf is affected and killed. A white fungus growth is often observed on the under surface of the leaf where affected. The organism may also attack the potato causing slightly sunken brownish or purplish spots that enlarge until the entire potato is affected. By cutting into blight-infected potatoes, granular reddish blotches will be observed.

There are a number of treatments on the market that have proven effective in the control of late blight such as Parzate-dust, Zerlate-dust, Copper Oxochloride sulfate-dust, Parzate-dust and Bordeaux mixture as a spray. A dust containing 7% copper has already checked the blight disease on potato fields in the county.

Mr. Williams recommended that from 30 to 40 pounds per acre of either of these dusts be applied at weekly intervals from now until digging time. Potato yields can be reduced considerably between now and harvest time if attacked severely by late blight, stated Mr. Williams.

No bid was made by Morehead City for the 1950 convention but delegates from the club offered the facilities of Morehead City and this area for the convention in the event that no other city requests it.

Seven clubs have announced that they will hold beauty contests to choose a queen to the Miss North Carolina contest to be held in Morehead City this summer. Others contacted Walter Morris of Morehead City, chairman of the state contest, and said they are interested in holding similar contests.

Judge L. R. Morris Gets Green Light on Factory

Lambert R. Morris, recorder's court judge of Carteret county and resident of Atlantic, may proceed to rebuild his burned fish factory at Lennoxville, despite a neighbor's objections, the State Supreme court ruled Wednesday at Raleigh, but he is not given a license to operate it as a nuisance.

The neighbor, Charles L. Pake, had sought to get a perpetual injunction against Mr. Morris or anyone else putting a fish factory near his home. Carteret county superior court denied him such an injunction, and he appealed to the highest court.

Pake's contention was that Mr. Morris' first factory made his homeplace almost unlivable because of odors coming from the plant, where fish are crushed for oil and fertilizer.

When it burned, Pake thought he was free of the alleged nuisance, but now that Mr. Morris intends to rebuild Mr. Pake is objecting to the project.

"A fish factory," the Supreme court said, "is not a nuisance per se; situation, environment and manner of operation determine its status."

It added that Pake has plenty of law on his side if the proposed factory does in fact become a nuisance.

Minister Speaks At Rotary Club

The Rev. T. R. Jenkins, Rotarian and pastor of Ann Street Methodist church, spoke on human rights at the Beaufort Rotary club meeting Tuesday night at the Inlet Inn.

He told Rotarians that the present day problems on human rights could be solved by practicing the principles of Christianity.

Human rights were first considered in the Code of Hammurabi 4,000 years ago, Mr. Jenkins related. They were referred to in the Justinian code, and one of the greatest steps forward in establishing the rights of human beings was made in the drafting of the Magna Carta in England in 1215.

The speaker stated that human rights were set forth in the Napoleonic code and the United States Declaration of Independence. Modern times has focused attention on human rights because of a series of wars and the advancement of science bringing the world closer, Mr. Jenkins continued.

The formation of a committee on human rights in the United Nations shows that this international body recognizes that fact. This committee, he said, first had to answer the following questions before it could draw up a human rights charter: Is man an animal or superior to animals? What is the place of the individual in modern society? What is the relationship between man and state, the individual and the law, and what are man's ultimate loyalties?

Human rights have been dealt with by Christianity through the centuries. Yet the United Nations has failed to accept its principles, the League of Nations failed because it neglected God, declared the minister, and Christianity has been cast aside when it could be the instrument by which human rights problems could be solved.

Two guests attended Tuesday night's meeting, Larry Whitehead of Abilene, Kan., and W. H. Alexander of Warren, Pa.

The seafood dinners were prepared at Holden's restaurant and served at the Inlet Inn. The inn's stove was out of order.

Beaufort Drops Causeway Project

Two Commissioners Attend Special Meeting Wednesday Night

Only two commissioners, Wiley Taylor, Jr., and Graham W. Duncan, Jr., mayor pro-tem, put in an appearance for the special meeting of the Beaufort town board Wednesday night as required by law concerning the extension of the town limits.

Grover Munden, president of WMBL, attended the meeting and told the men his opinion on the issue.

Because it had been decided at previous meetings with the Morehead City board that the issue would be dropped and a joint zoning commission set up, the two commissioners set 10 o'clock yesterday morning as a meeting time if the other members of the board did not agree that the project should be abandoned.

The other members did agree with the two who attended the Wednesday night session so no meeting was held yesterday morning.

Mr. Taylor and Mr. Duncan read the petition offered by causeway residents requesting a referendum on taking that section into Beaufort. It was signed by 80 per cent of eligible voters there.

There will be no referendum and there will be no further processes of law to incorporate Pivers Island, Inlet Island or causeway property, the Beaufort board decided.

Mr. Munden stated that if either Morehead City or Beaufort took in Inlet Island, the state would not pay the road there, also he said paying the higher taxes to either town would not obtain water or sewage service on Inlet Island.

1949 Music Revue To Be 'Best Ever'

The Beaufort glee club's 1949 song and dance revue promises to be 10 times better than the hit show the group gave last spring. It will feature the 55 voices of the expertly-trained school group, brilliant costumes, colorful scenery and some of the best-loved music of the American people.

The show will be given at 8 o'clock Friday night, May 20, in the Beaufort school auditorium. Many of the stars who appeared in the 1948 show are again on this year's program.

The revue is written and directed by Mrs. Charles Hassell, instructor of public school music at the school, and director of the glee club.

This will be one of the last major productions to be given before commencement.

Move ahead with Morehead."

Robert G. Lowe, general manager of the Chamber stated today that the pennies had done a good job. "The membership campaign for the new fiscal year is progressing nicely," he said. "I wish I could get as good a return on other investments as we get out of that penny."

Confederate Flag Rises Again Over Carteret's Grand Fort

For the first time since April 25, 1862, the colors of the Confederate States of America flew over Fort Macon Wednesday. The occasion was the flag-raising ceremony at the fort sponsored by the A. M. Waddell chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy of Lenoir county.

Over 200 UDC members, military officers, state officials and other persons were present at the ceremony. Mrs. J. A. Jones of Kinston, president of the Waddell chapter, was official hostess for the occasion.

The ceremony opened with an invocation by Mrs. Jones and a welcome by Mrs. Quentin Gregory of Halifax, state UDC president. Colonel Edward Gregory of Cherry Point then dedicated the national colors as they were raised by a Coast Guard color guard to the accompaniment of Marine Corps field music. The dedication and raising of the state flag by Mrs. Henry Stevenson of Warsaw, state UDC registrar, followed.

The highlight of the program was the dedication and raising of Confederate colors. Mrs. Francis Hoke Pollock, daughter of Confederate General Hoke, dedicated the Residents at Crab Point wish it to be made clear that 200 dead hogs were not thrown in a ditch in their community. This happened at Havelock last fall when hogs died from cholera. There was a loss at Crab Point but those hogs were properly disposed of. Dr. E. C. Paden, veterinarian, commented on these occurrences last Monday before the county commissioners.
