Your Child Today

Junior and His Money

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE

AP Newsfeatures
Sooner or later every child must learn to make his own decisions in handling money. But parents often fail to realize that the handling of money is a thing that has to be learned, says Professor Ralph H. Ojemann.

A noted authority on the influence of culture and community upon the school-age child, Dr. Ojemann is associate professor in the Iowa University Child Welfare Research Station. Writing in National Parent-Teacher in an article entitled "Allowance for Growth," he says:

"The ability to use money must be acquired. No child is born with it. Furthermore, the learning is not a simple matter. It does not take place by itself, and it is a long process.

"It isn't enough for the child to learn that five pennies make a nickel, two nickels a dime, ten dimes a dollar and so on. . . . It means that the child has to learn what choices will help him in the long run. Whether he will buy more hot dogs and popcorn than he needs to satisfy his hunger, or go without a new pair of socks or what we adults call 'decent' shoes, depends greatly upon what he himself feels will help him most."

Learning the use of money is much like other kinds of learning. You can read all about it, as an adult, but it takes actual doing to get the most out of anything. The child is equally dependent on experience. In other words, says Dr. Ojemann, all children need money of their own as an "allowance for growth."

The child may get his money either by working for it, through an allowance, or both. The important point is that the money come in fairly regularly, especially at the start. Furthermore, junior must decide how the money is to be spent. It will not help him to form judgments and make decisions if someone tells him that he is to use ten cents for candy, ten cents for Sunday school, fifteen cents for a movie, and so on. The deciding has to be done by junior himself, says Dr. Ojemann.

But suppose Junior makes foolish purchases? What can we, as parents, do then? When a child continually spends his money in a way that doesn't help him, there are reasons, says Professor Ojemann. It is our business to know what those reasons are. Does the child feel inadequate, insecure, or deprived of a reasonable chance? Another important point is that the child who manages his own money must suffer the logical consequences of unwise spending. If he should exhaust his funds before his next allowance, supplying him at random with additional funds may defeat the whole system of training.

Above all, it will help both the parents and the child if we realize

Family Dinner Party Honors Hugh Farrior

Mrs. A. B. Vick entertained at a family dinner Sunday at 1 o'clock, honoring her father, Hugh Farrior, on the occasion of his 75th birthday. The dining table was laid with a handmade linen cloth, with a centerpiece of Japanese quince and white candles on either side.

Those attending the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Jernigan and daughter, Lottie, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ballinger and son, Ray, all of Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Forbes, Jr., and son, Charles III, of Greenville, Mrs. Inez Temple of Wilson, Miss Louise Farrior and Miss Donnie Wiggins of Goldsboro, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Farrior, Jr., and sons Bill and Jack of Newport, Miss Jean Farrior, a student at ECTC, and Mr. and Mrs. Gibb Farrior, and daughter, Shirley, of Morehead City.

that learning to handle money is not a simple matter for anyone. It involves the very difficult problem of learning to judge and to recognize values. The actual practice obtained from handling money or earning it or both, the guidance that comes from an intelligent family council, and the further guidance of heart-to-heart talks with his parents—these are one of the birthrights of every child. The task is not easy, but it is very important. It can be done.

Students to Take Part in Public Speaking Contest

The North Carolina Bankers' association in cooperation with agriculture workers are sponsoring a public speaking contest for high school students.

Al Stinson, assistant county agent, announced yesterday that the topic of speeches for this contest is "The Social Aspects of Soil Wasteage." The winner in Carteret county will compete with winners in other counties of group III of the Bankers' association. First place winner in this group will receive a $50 bond, and second place winner $25.

State prizes will be $400 in bonds for first place, $100 in bonds for second and $50 in bonds for third.

Any student from grades 9 through 12 is eligible to compete, Mr. Stinson said. He must write his own speech which should be no more than 12 minutes in length. He will be judged on organization and content of his talk, correct English, poise, and expression.

It is required that each contestant attend a supervised tour to observe the effects of misused land.

Tentative dates for the contest are as follows: schools March 3, county contests March 10, subgroup contests March 14, group contests March 14, and the final contest in Raleigh March 24.

Students who are interested should contact their English teacher or Mr. Stinson.

No Sundays Off In India

NEW DELHI—(AP)—A Christian member of the Indian constituent assembly characterized as "the tyranny of the majority" a proposal to hold the session on a Sunday. Mrs. Annie Mascarene of Travancore said Sundays were meant for going to church. Assembly President Rajendra Prasad fixed the time of the session to suit the convenience of churchgoers.

Members Shrimp Commission Meet

Group Requests Publication on Findings of Shrimp Survey

An informal discussion was held among members of the shrimp commission who attended the recent meeting at the Institute of Fisheries Research to lay out the program of the Albatross.

William A. Ellison, Jr., director of the institute, was asked to give consideration to publication of the findings of the shrimp survey. This publication is to be in permanent form and illustrated with charts, graphs and maps. The creation of the shrimp commission was an act of the 1947 general assembly which appropriated funds for the investigation. The members of the commission were appointed by the department of conservation and development. Dr. Harden F. Taylor of New York was selected by the commission as executive director, and Mr. Ellison as field director. Carter Broad joined the scientific staff of the commission in March of 1948 and has carried on the field work.

Mr. Ellison told commission members that the shrimp survey is about complete and that the final report is being prepared. He told the group that although none of the shrimp commission's funds had been spent on the inland water shrimp investigations, the data developed by these studies is a necessary part of the general shrimp picture of the state and disclosed that in writing the final report, he proposes to use these data for a clarification of the general picture.

Immediately following the series of discussions Monday at the Institute of Fisheries Research, the scientists and vessel owners were the luncheon guests of the captain and scientists of the Albatross.

Those present were Captain Styron, Garland Fulcher of Oriental, Clayton Fulcher of Atlantic, Sheriff Gehrman of Beaufort, Earl Holton of Vandemere, Mr. William Wells of Southport, R. J. Hudson of Vandemere, Mr. Hardee of Southport.

Clyde Potter of Belhaven, who was one of the delegates to the meeting, sent his regrets by telegram but assured the group of his interest.

Scientists who attended were the following: Clinton E. Atkinson, Chief, Middle and South Atlantic Fishery Investigations of Fish and Wildlife Service in overall charge of Albatross III expedition, Tom Odom, Bingham

Oceanographic Laboratory of Yale University, Ed Hollis of Fish and Wildlife Service, Raymond Bulger of Fish and Wildlife Service, Dean Bumpus of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Don Howell, Fish Engineer, Richard Sayles of Fish and Wildlife Service.

Dr. E. W. Roelofs, Dr. A. F. Chestnut, and A. Carter Broad of the Institute of Fisheries Research.

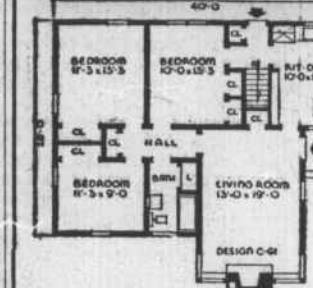

Mr. Ellison commented that he was well pleased with the meeting and that with the combination of practical knowledge and scientific talent represented in the group, a large amount of scientific and technical knowledge with a

British Build Most Ships
LONDON—(AP)—Lloyd's Register of Shipping disclosed that British shipyards are building nearly as many vessels as all the rest of the world put together.
