Western Union Personnel Return To Work Monday

Workers in Beaufort and Morehead City Western Union offices went back to work Monday. The 52-day-old strike ended at 12:01 a.m. Monday with a wage agreement.

In Beaufort B. C. Vickery, manager, and in Morehead City, Louis Norris, manager, and Miss Madeline Royal, resumed their positions, displacing supervisory employees who had been sent here to keep the offices open during the course of the strike.

Adolph Brungs, head of the Western Union Division, AFL Commercial Telegraphers union, said the vote was 8,685 for acceptance of the wage agreement and 5,468 for rejection.

Telegraph workers across the country had been voting over the weekend on whether to approve or reject a strike settlement negotiated by the CTU and the Western Union Telegraph company.

The agreement calls for pay raises or reduction of working hours. It was hinged to government permission for Western Union to raise its rates. The union agreed to support a company plea before the Federal Communications commission for a rate boost.

The company said the new pay average for all employees would be $1.73.

The union said raises under the new agreement would boost average worker earnings to $1.54 an hour except for messengers. Messengers would be raised to an average of 83 cents an hour.

The time for the smaller children, ages 9 to 12, will be from 7:30 to 10. The teen-agers will be allowed to stay until 11 if their parents permit them. Indoor activities include leather and shell craft, shuffle board and ping pong. The snack bar will be open during the day and when night activities are in progress.

"I am glad that we will have the pleasure of hearing Major Williams, Daniels said. "For many years during his active career, he was famed as one of the foremost precision flyers of all time." Major Williams was in the Marine corps and is now retired.

Daniels stated also that T. A. Basnight, jr., chief air traffic controller of the Washington National airport and his brother Captain Arvin O. Basnight of the CAA in Washington will also appear with others to pay tribute to Driskill. Eugene C. Marlin of the Patrick Henry airport, Newport News, will lead a flight club to Manteo today and another large air group, the Pittsburgh Aero club will be here on their annual air cruise to Manteo and the Nags Head region this Memorial Day weekend.

Music for the occasion will be provided by the Manteo High School Glee club under the direction of L. D. Hudgins.

Special guests from many parts of the nation who were close to Driskill during the days that he was famous as the "pilot of the Outer Banks" and while chief test pilot for the Kellett corporation, will be present to eulogize this pilot who gave his life that others may fly safely, said Daniels.

A Word For Those Interested In Commercial Fishing: In my program for "A Better Tomorrow in North Carolina," released to the public on February 21, 1952, I said: "We must encourage the further development of our seafood industry." Since announcing the program on which I asked the people of North Carolina to elect me Governor of the State I have repeatedly emphasized the importance of developing and encouraging the vast potential seafood industry that is possible along our Carolina coast. Obviously an important part of such an effort, to which I have long since pledged myself, would be to have someone serving on the Commercial Fisheries Committee of the State Board of Conservation and Development who would represent and understand the interests of the seafood industry. Such a person would be able to render a great and useful service in helping with the solution of the problems of this industry. My interest in this important part of North Carolina's economy has been of long standing, as was indicated when I included a reference to it in my program as originally outlined for the voters of our State. Such an interest will continue after I am elected Governor. My concern for North Carolina's commercial fishermen is not a last-minute afterthought. It is a part of my over-all interest and concern for A BETTER TOMORROW IN NORTH CAROLINA. Persons directly interested in the seafood industry have known for a long time that I will select someone from their own ranks to help deal in matters that are unique to that industry.
