for Freedom. The committee in charge of Americanism will conduct the campaign for funds. Carl Chadwick is chairman of the committee. They will place containers in the various business houses for a collection for the fund.

One of the chief functions of the Crusade for Freedom is the raising of money to finance broadcasts to communist-controlled countries which explain the American way of life and bring true news of world affairs to those countries.

Some personal contacts to aid the fund will be made. An open forum discussion on committee assignments was held during the meeting. The discussion was led by James Steed, program chairman. Members also made suggestions on committee work and means of improving activities of the club, particularly in regard to programs other than ath-

Beaufort Police Arrest Four

Beaufort police made four arrests this week. Arrested on a charge of having in his possession a quantity of non-paid tax whiskey was Claude Russell, colored, giving his address as Florence, Miss. He is a member of the fishing crew of the "Promised Land."

Arrested on a charge of selling Russell the non-paid tax whiskey were Levi and Nehemiah Williams, colored, Beaufort.

Russell is in the county jail under $100 bond. Both of the Williams' are in the county jail under $200 bond each.

Mildred and Herbert Baum, colored, Beaufort, were both arrested on charges of disturbing the public peace by using loud, boisterous and profane language on the streets of Beaufort. They were cited to court on their own recognizance.

include the Miami-Biltmore at Miami, Fla.

The Taylor company owns its docks at Norfolk and uses its warehouse crew as stevedores at considerable saving in labor cost. For this reason the company has resisted efforts of other ports to secure some of its business.

Holt has negotiated twice with the Taylors at Norfolk and, on one recent occasion, the brothers conferred with him at Morehead City and personally examined dock, rail and warehouse facilities.

The Taylor company imports raw salt as well as bananas and, while it has displayed little interest so far in bringing bananas into the port terminal, Holt stated that it has displayed interest in not only bringing in raw salt but setting up a raw salt processing plant here.

According to Taylor company estimates, Morehead City is too far removed from banana distribution

Fisheries

(Continued from Page 1) resources the harvest of oysters for the past season was the finest, in quantity and quality, in the history of the state. He praised the Institute of Fisheries Research of the University of North Carolina for the aid it has given in the development of the oyster program.

The two groups cooperated in locating natural beds for oysters and in determination of methods of seeding and protection of the bivalves.

There were 305,565 bushel tubs of oysters harvested off the public grounds with a value to the oystermen of $763,912, the report indicates.

The total amounted to about 50,000 more bushels than for the previous period. The clam harvest of 253,500 bushels of clams was described as having been the largest in the state's history for any other comparable period.

Arresting officers were Chief Carlton Garner and Capt. Maxwell Wade.

cupancy limits the use to which the building may be put, but he did not know whether or not there is any time limit on the certificate.

Luther Leonard, owner of a metal shop on the block, also appeared at the meeting. He entered no objection to the rezoning and said that he was there only to find out what the board was going to do.

Leonard's location was being used for business purposes before the zoning ordinance went into effect. He asked if he would be allowed to rebuild the shop if it ever burned down. Mayor Dill said that since the lot has been zoned for business Leonard would be allowed to rebuild the shop in such a case.

The commissioners took the matter under advisement and said that their decision would be announced at the board's regular meeting Dec. 18.

The commissioners asked Mayor Dill to request that the A&E railway erect a blinker light on the grade crossing at 28th and Arendell street. They said that motorists cannot see the crossing at night.

Queen Street Students To Give Pageant Sunday
