E. P. Blair Speaks to Rotary

E. P. Blair, principal of Farm Life School, Vanceboro, spoke on Expanding Our Frontier in Rotary at the weekly meeting of the Newport Rotary Club Monday night at the Community Building.

Mr. Blair, introduced by the program chairman, Moses C. Howard, said that the members of the organization must "travel up the mountain path to enjoy the club." He stated that if the individual members didn't work at the projects, then they would get nothing out of their membership.

He explained the Rotary motto, Service Above Self, by stating that the only way one could gain happiness was by giving to someone else.

Mr. Blair said that all members of the club must be willing to help in community affairs, and must take an interest in the churches and schools.

Using Abraham Lincoln's words, "Do I not destroy my enemies when I make them my friends?" Mr. Blair stated that the Rotary Club's international understanding program was one of the best ways in which peace could be attained.

Visiting Rotarians from Morehead City were Albert Gaskill, Walter Edwards and David Murray.

Visitors from Newport were Wally Adams, Junius T. Creech, Prentis M. Garner, Wilbur V. Garner and Doug Henderson.

Water System

216 Meters Estimated

"Estimate of cost: there is provision for construction of a water service line to the approximate curb line of the streets. Also included are 216 meters for the measurement of water. We estimate that the greater portion of these 216 meters will be installed during construction and all within one year after completion of the project.

"The water system, as outlined, is estimated to cost $120,000. This sum includes all items necessary to construct the system in its entirety, including engineering fees, attorney fees, land and right-of-ways, and a contingent fund of $10,124.33, which may be used for items unforeseen at this time."

The engineers estimate that of 270 potential water users, 80 per cent or a total of 216 will be actual users within a year after installation of the system.

The town has been installing water lines under supervision of Commissioner Bennie Garner, with the aid of volunteer labor. The town has been paying for materials.

The project, to put the mains throughout town, was undertaken because the present process is proving to be slow and thus will offer water service to only a fortunate few who happen to be living on streets where lines have been laid.

MERCHANDISE AND SERVICE

"I've got my hands full!"

WHO COULD DENY IT? Few people in town were busier than Bill Beecher, corporation executive and member of a score of business, civic and social groups. The chamber needed his talents but he was having none of it. Like he said... "I belong to too many organizations now!"

IT WAS AN OLD STORY. Big Bill hadn't learned to say "no" early enough. Now he was up to his coat-tails in club memberships and about to pass up one of the most important opportunities in his business life. I did him a real favor when I asked what these groups were doing to benefit the community.

WHAT STOPPED HIM COLD and gave me a chance to point out the chamber's unique function. "Sure," I told him, "they're nice to belong to. But you can join a thousand organizations and there's still only one chamber in your town... and you should be active in it as long as you do business here."

THIS WAS JUST A STARTER. When Big Bill got interested, like any good executive he wanted all the facts. So I gave him specifics on what the chamber did to attract new industries, improve business conditions... all the things to make his town a better place to live and work in.

LET'S FACE IT! Bill Beecher did, and he couldn't think of another organization working harder to promote growth and prosperity in his community. So if you can't find time for another activity, just remember how Big Bill felt when he told me... "There's always room for one more." Make it your chamber, won't you?
