Grandmother Builds

Granville, Ohio (AP)—If any of her five grandchildren need a home, Mrs. Rachel Ramsey should be able to help. The spry 86-year-old has built two houses herself and a third with help since 1950. She's now remodeling her garage into an addition to her house.

Certain members of the asphalt roofing industry are taking government agencies to task for accepting "down-graded" asphalt roofing. One of them is Lloyd A. Fry, chairman of the board of Lloyd A. Fry Roofing Co. A Fry plant is located at Morehead City.

Mr. Fry appeared recently before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, which is conducting hearings on pricing policies and practices of the asphalt roofing industry. Chairman of the committee is Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.).

In his testimony, Mr. Fry pointed out that government agencies concerned with building have accepted substitute roofing products. He alleged that they were inferior to the type of product required for substantial roof construction.

The Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration now accept, Mr. Fry said, a 10-year roof on a building for which the government is guaranteeing payment of the mortgage up to 30 years.

Substitute Materials

Using inferior quality materials in roofing was referred to by Mr. Fry as the "Art of Substitution". Much of the rpic cutting, which the Kefauver committee is investigating is a result, Mr. Fry contended, of allowing manufacturers to use inferior materials in an attempt "to secure a competitive cost advantage".

Mr. Fry cited a specific example. It follows:

"Today, and since 1935, the largest selling asphalt shingle is the 12" x 36" - 3 tab - strip shingle, with 5" exposure, weighing 210 pounds per square.

"The Original High Quality Standards established for this asphalt shingle, 1915 to 1935, same size, same 3 tabs, same 5" exposure — weighed 257 pounds per square.

"By the 'Art of Substitution', the figures show this strip shingle, representing about 60 per cent of the total tonnage produced in the entire industry, has 30 per cent LESS dry felt foundation, 40 per cent LESS asphalt content, and 10 per cent LESS surfacing protection, which conclusively proves that "COST" is the predominate consideration, without regard for Quality Standards or Roof Performance."

Low Standards

The two recognized agencies having some control over the industry, the Federal Specification Board and the Underwriters Laboratories, have established only minimum standards, Mr. Fry said.

Those standards permit widespread use of inferior elements at the discretion of the individual manufacturer.

Mr. Fry told the committee, "I cannot think of anything more ridiculous than the Government guaranteeing payment of a mortgage on a house, for up to 30 years, KNOWING that the MAXIMUM life of the roof is only 10 years."

Mr. Fry suggested that the government require each asphalt roofing manufacturer to post full bond covering material and labor costs guaranteeing roofs for 20 years on 20-year government guaranteed mortgage buildings.

He pointed out that with each manufacturer putting out roofing products to suit himself, no possible comparison can be made in value, even though all the products may look the same.

Lewis Forrest Speaks to Club

Lewis Forrest, a freshman at Newport High School, was the speaker at the Newport Rotary Club meeting Monday night at the school lunchroom. Lewis was the guest of program chairman E. B. Comer.

Mr. Comer explained that Lewis had recently won a National Sojourners essay contest and had a very worthwhile talk. The subject of the speech was Americanism, A Way of Life.

Lewis took each letter in the word "American" and showed what it meant. "A" is for America, "M" is for material blessings, "E" is for education, "R" is for religious freedom, "I" is for each individual in the country, "C" is for country, "A" is for allegiance, and "N" is for a sovereign nation.

Rotary president C. H. Lockey reported on his trip to the district meeting at Wilmington last week. Visitors were Manley Hines, Wilmington, and Bruce Hart, Newport student guest.

The club will observe next Monday, Easter Monday, as a holiday.

Boy Edges Girlfriend With Butterfly Exhibit

Oklahoma City (AP)—John Reinhart, 17, won the blue ribbon for his butterfly collection at the state fair.

He credited his girl friend, Lareeca Carpenter, with getting him interested in insects. However, John wasn't too happy about getting the blue ribbon. In winning, he edged out Lareeca, who won second place.
