County Board

Glenn. Mr. Joslyn said that there is not sufficient money in the budget for permanent rooms at Camp Glenn.

The welfare department requests $19,631 more this year than last. The total budget is $473,000, of which the county would pay $80,000.

Miss Hughes stated that if the welfare department did not get the amount it requests, she would completely cut out the general assistance funds. These are the funds which are not matched by the state or federal governments but are used to help in local emergency cases.

Auditor Comments
Mr. Potter, the auditor, said it seemed to him that if the county provides the money, the county has as much right to say how it shall be used (for general assistance, for example) as the state and federal governments have in dictating how their funds are to be used.

Miss Hughes cited several examples of the need for welfare funds. Commissioner Odell Merrill said that the board of education had told the county board stories just as sad, and the county still doesn't have the money to meet budget increases.

In other business, Lewis Hinson, Morehead City, appeared before the board and asked to be relieved of taxes on a bakery which he sold in 1955. He said the bakery was listed in error in 1958 and 1957. The board approved his request.

Something to Sing About!

As you look about during these early spring days, think of the advantages you have to sing about. You'll probably see new playgrounds and parks. Perhaps Main Street has a new look following a general "face-lifting" project. In the residential area, notice the results of a clean-up and beautification program. If a lack of accomplishment in your town doesn't inspire you to song, there is still time to join in the chorus. Now, during these early spring days when all things seem to take on new and renewed life, offer your energy toward the completion of the many improvement projects in your town.

In over 100 Finer Carolina towns right now the projects for this contest period are reaching the final stages. Your interest and aid could be the factor which would cause your town to win honors in the competition.

Join the chorus of thousands of other Carolinians who are singing the praises of their cooperative effort to build A Finer Carolina.
