

Farewell to Arms Will Open Sunday at Morehead

The film version of Ernest Hemingway's great war novel, A Farewell to Arms, will run all next week at the Morehead Theatre. Rock Hudson and Jennifer Jones share top billing in the movie.

As Lieutenant Frederic Henry, an American ambulance driver on the Austro-Italian front during the First World War, Rock Hudson displays deep and simple dramatic depths.

His control, his ability to meet the varying demands placed upon the Henry character, mark him anew as one of the screen's finest technicians.

Jennifer Jones, as Nurse Catherine Barkley who loved without reservation, is excellent and is every bit as fine, but with a deeper maturity, than in her award winning role in The Song of Bernadette.

Playing Sunday through Tuesday at the City Theatre will be Cattle Empire, starring Joel McCrea. McCrea plays the part of John Cord, Texas' toughest trail boss.

Joel McCrea, an active horseman and rancher himself, brings to the role of Cord, who allowed his men to commit the worst trail crime possible, a realistic and hard-bitten portrayal.

Gary Merrill and Nancy Davis co-star in Crash Landing, scheduled to play Wednesday and Thursday at the City.

Crash Landing is hailed as one of the year's most exciting air-sea adventures, the dramatic story of 32 people aboard a trans-Atlantic plane forced down in mid-ocean.
