

Coast Guard Rescues Two Lost on Shoal

Three Coast Guardsmen spent Sunday night and early Monday hours searching for Albert Ingram, Beaufort, and his grandson. They were found about 6 a. m. yesterday on Guthrie Shoals south of Carrot Island.

Mr. Ingram, his grown son Roy, and three of the elder Ingram's grandchildren got stranded on the island late Sunday, according to Coast Guard reports. Bill Willis, Beaufort, at the request of Mrs. Ingram, called the Fort Macon Coast Guard station at 10:22 p. m. Sunday and reported that the Ingrams were overdue from a fishing trip.

Later in the night Roy Ingram and two of the children were spotted on Peanut Shoals just across from Beaufort. They had waded in and made a signal fire. A boat from Beaufort picked them up.

Roy Ingram said that his father and one child were still with the boat but he was mixed up in his directions and was unable to tell the Coast Guard just where they were.

Shortly after daylight the missing pair were rescued. Coast Guardsmen on the search were EN/2 Ronald Quidley, SN Kerry Lewis and SN Carlos Hinnant.

Work Joins Study at Bard; Students Benefit

By JIM LEESON

Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y. (AP)—Working their way through college is the rule rather than the exception for most students at Bard College — it's part of the curriculum.

Following Christmas holidays each year, Bard students scatter throughout the United States for an eight-week field period to practice what has been preached in class.

They hold jobs ranging from assistant in a mental hospital to hired hand on a farm, finding out — before graduation — what type of work they're fitted for.

About 70 per cent of Bard's 255 students get paying jobs for the field period during their first three years. As seniors they "retire" to spend the two months on their senior projects.

Faculty advisors keep an eye on them and can assign extra studies to fulfill program requirements. As a double check, students and employers write reports of what was accomplished.

The Winter Field Period began at Bard in 1934 as an experiment. At first, all students returned home for special reading or research projects. Gradually the period evolved into the work-study program. The students get a regular vacation in the summer.

Each year, Bard students have been hired consistently by such organizations as Lederle Laboratories, Sloan-Kettering Institute, Reader's Digest, the Esso Company, and the Museum of Natural History.

For many students, these temporary job experiences have led to good jobs after graduation. Bard's president, James H. Case Jr., says, "Jobs and study can and should supplement each other. The combination enables students to mature intellectually and practically."

One-Woman Show
New York (AP)—One of Broadway's most famous musical comedies, "Kiss Me Kate," is now a one-woman show. Mrs. Bea Solomon, of Syracuse, N. Y., using a four-in-one utility costume and assisted by a piano player, has played 25 one-night appearances since last October. In its original version "Kiss Me Kate" employed 16 principals and a chorus.

Candidates Speak
These four candidates were the first to speak from the floor of the convention. Each expressed his respect for his opponent and said that regardless of the outcome of the primary election he would be solidly behind the party in November.

Others who spoke from the floor were Odell Merrill, Beaufort; Moses Howard, Newport; Harrell Taylor, Sea Level, all county commissioners; Tommie Lewis, Harkers Island, candidate for county commissioner; David Yeomans, Harkers Island, candidate for county commissioner; Capt. George Rose, Harkers Island.

Cecil Morris, Atlantic, chairman of the state commercial fisheries committee; Mayor George Dill, Morehead City; Luther Hamilton Jr., Morehead City; D. G. Bell, county assemblyman; Sheriff Hugh Salter, Mr. Potter, auditor; Eugene Moore, county tax collector; and Wiley Taylor Jr., solicitor.

The Atomic Energy Commission says Utah has 5,700,000 tons of known uranium reserves and ranks third among the states. New Mexico and Wyoming hold the two first places.

Mitchell Village To Go at Auction

Mitchell Village, one of the county's larger residential subdivisions, will be put on the auction block tomorrow starting at 10 a. m. by the J. L. Todd Auction Co. of Rome, Ga.

The Todd company made land auction history here last summer when it successfully put hundreds of government-owned intracoastal waterway fringed land on the block in the Morehead City high school auditorium.

According to the auction announcement, everything must go — business sites, industrial property as well as residential property.

The area occupied by Mitchell Village as well as the adjoining business and industrial property were acquired by Rochelle Realty Company of Roanoke Rapids four years ago.

Mitchell Village property is located along the main highway west of Morehead City.

Three Cars Smash Up At Junkyard Junction

Three cars were smashed up at Junkyard Junction again Saturday at 10:55 p. m. Willie Gray, who operates a junkyard at the intersection of Highways 70 and 70A, is perhaps the only junk man in North Carolina who is obliged by motorists' wrecking their cars in his front yard.

An accident occurs at the junction on the average of more than one a month. The rate has gone up since Arendell Street (Highway 70) was made dual lane. In the wreck there last week, Mr. Gray's fence in his front yard was ripped down.

Other wrecks have damaged the fence around the junkyard, knocked down the railroad warning signal nearby or damaged trucks parked in Mr. Gray's driveway.

Jack Nelson Schuping, Cherry Point, suffered cuts on his face Saturday night and has been charged with driving drunk, careless and reckless driving, speeding and failing to stop at a stop sign.

According to Patrolman J. W. Sykes, Schuping, in a 1953 Dodge, was going west on Highway 70. At the stop sign at the junction of 70A, Schuping crashed into a 1956 Buick waiting at the stop sign.

Then the Dodge glanced off the Buick and hit a 1953 Ford headed east on Highway 70A.

Driving the Buick was Joe M. Moseley, Jacksonville, and in the Ford was Walter William Long Jr., New Bern.

Damage to the Buick was estimated at $800, to the Dodge $500 and to the Ford $400.

Midland, Texas, got its name because it is the half-way point between Fort Worth and El Paso, two major railroad terminals. It is now an oil boom town, not just a railroad layover.
