Morton Team, Father-Son, Almost Lose Car in Channel

Odell Morton and his father George, Morehead City, launched their outboard motorboat at Sonny's on the Atlantic Beach causeway Sunday afternoon, and they launched their car too—but the latter was unintentional.

Odell said he backed his 1952 Buick down to the water, with trailer and boat behind it. The car was on the ramp. He put the

Odell and his father got out of the car and went around to let the boat off the trailer. "About that time." Odell says, "something in the car gave 'way and it began to roll backwards. I jumped in the car to try to stop it, but by the time I got my foot on the brake, the rear end of the car was in the water, so I jumped

His father who was on the other side of the car was knocked into the water by the rolling car. He went under, came up, grabbed the boat and got back to shore.

Mr. George hasn't gotten over the incident yet.
"I had a dollar cap on my head," he grumbles. "That stayed put, but I lost my $175 watch."
