"From the time fishing began until 2 p.m., when Captain Hu-bert Fulcher turned the boat west and began the long run west and began the long run back to land, this party raised and hooked 13 blue marlin. of them came in with one blue marlin each. Like the Winston Salem party, they too raised and hooked a number of blues.

"A party fishing from the 'Rebel by George Nissen of Win ston-Salem tied into one great fish-estimated at more than 600 pounds-and fought him for four "Saturday's catch brought the total blue marlin catch at More-head City to seven. All seven were taken within 10 days. With one exception—a fish boated by Capt. Bill Olsen last summer these are the first blue marlin ever caught off Morehead City.

"It is not at all unusual for partles fishing the world's famed marlin grounds—places like Bi-mini, Guaymas, Cuba and Puerto Rico-to troll for day after dreary day without raising a single fish. It is almost unheard of for a single party to raise and hook as many as 13 blue marlin in a single day's fishing.

"In the opinion of experienced anglers this red hot flurry is not a fluke. It is, instead, the re-sult of fishing the right waters— waters farther offshore—at the right time."

We agree with Chester Davis but we're glad he said it first. Otherwise, we'd seem to be brag-ging. But it's been said before that around Morehead City we're inclined to apologize for ourselves our oysters and our fish. Well, there's no need to apologize any more, for when it comes to whop pers, we have them.

A nine-day score of eight blue marlin is fabulous anywhere, but the boys here will probably tell you they weren's half try-ing, or that they couldn't get any decent bait, or that they had aothing larger than a 9/9 reel. Of the eight, three have been taken by Dolphin, two by Mary Z,
