

Water Manager Says No Date Available on Well

Chemists Say They Can't Decide on Best Treatment Process

C. W. Williams, manager of the Carolina Water Co., said yesterday it was impossible to set a date on when Beaufort's new well would be put in use.

He talked by phone yesterday to the Philadelphia office of General Waterworks, of which Carolina Water Co. is a subsidiary, and was told that the company's chemists have not yet decided how to rid the new source of water of hydrogen sulfide, which causes the odor and smell.

While water from the new well does not have as high a percentage of hydrogen sulfide as the old well, it is present and Mr. Williams says the water company wants to be sure that the water is good water before they put it in the lines.

The hydrogen sulfide can be gotten rid of by aeration, but when the aeration process is used, the water causes corrosion. The water company has to find out what process to use to counteract the corrosion if aeration is used, Mr. Williams said.

The manager added that his firm is investing a lot of money in the well and treatment of water and they want to be sure the town will have "first class water" when they're through.

He asked that the Beaufort water users "bear with the water company" until the treatment process is decided on. He said he had no idea when that would be.

Rev. John Cline Heads Ministers

The Rev. John Cline, pastor of Ann Street Methodist Church, Beaufort, will be installed as president of the county ministerial association at its next meeting in September. He was elected yesterday morning when the ministers met at the civic center, Morehead City.

The Rev. Mr. Cline will take the place of the Rev. A. G. Harris. The Rev. Carroll Hansley will take Mr. Cline's place as vice-president. The Rev. W. P. Huff will replace the Rev. Ralph Fleming as secretary.

New treasurer is the Rev. Alvis Daniel who will take the Rev. Mr. Hansley's place. The Rev. Mr. Fleming will take over the chairmanship of the radio committee in the place of Dr. John Bunn. Dr. Bunn is leaving the county to be co-pastor at the Braggton Church, Durham, next month.

Migrant minister Rev. Marshall Gilmore presented the program. He discussed his work with the migrant laborers. In his first two weeks in the county he contacted over 400 adults and nearly 100 children, he said.

Mr. Gilmore told the ministers he brings about 20 children from the camps to vacation Bible School at the Beaufort colored churches each morning. He asked that anyone interested in ministering to the migrants get in touch with him through the farm labor office, Beaufort.

Eugene Dudley Injured on Boat

Eugene Dudley, Beaufort, captain of the menhaden boat, Bogue Sound, received a head injury Saturday morning when he was struck by a swinging block while the boat was fishing.

Cape Lookout Coast Guard station was called at 11:45 a.m. and a boat was sent from the station to the Bogue Sound. Captain Dudley was taken aboard the Coast Guard boat and put ashore at Harpers Lodge where he was taken by the Adair ambulance to the Morehead City Hospital.

Dr. B. F. Royal, attending physician, said he doubted if the captain's injuries were serious, but he was sending him to Norfolk yesterday for further check-up.

The Bogue Sound is owned by Beaufort Fisheries. Manning the Coast Guard boat that brought the skipper ashore were BM/1 Martin Brooks and SN Clarence Rogers.

County Women Complete Cherry Point Training

Four county women received certificates at Cherry Point last week for completion of a 14-hour Navy correspondence course. Mrs. F. B. Kunnetz, industrial relations training officer, taught the course.

Completing the course were Sylvia Willis, Aileen Thompson and Geraldine Thronberg of Newport and Ruby Baldree of Morehead City.

Officer Shoots Broad Creek Man in Scuffle

This is the Enemy

This is the size the mosquitoes will be in September if folks don't do something now to keep the pests from breeding.

Manly Mason, Broad Creek, was in Morehead City Hospital yesterday, recovering from a bullet wound in his left leg. Mason was injured at 10:30 Sunday night in a scuffle with Constable Ralph Paul, White Oak township.

Paul said that in the struggle, Mason grabbed the barrel of his gun, and the gun went off. The .22 calibre bullet went through Mason's thigh. The incident occurred on Highway 24 three miles east of the Cedar Point section.

The first occurrence leading up to the shooting was the arresting of Willie Junior Phillips, a Marine who lives at Bogue. The constable said that Phillips, in a 1956 Ford, was arrested for speeding.

Paul took Phillips in his car and went to "another location" where Mason was, because Mason had Phillips' driver's license. Then Mason wanted to go back with the constable and Phillips to pick up the Ford.

En route, the constable said Phillips became so belligerent that he started to turn around to take Phillips back to jail. As he stopped to turn, Mason reached over and grabbed the keys out of the ignition switch.

In the ensuing fray, Mason tried to take the constable's gun and was shot. The constable brought him to the Morehead City Hospital.

Mason's condition was reported satisfactory yesterday. He has been charged with assault and interfering with an officer in his line of duty.

Phillips has been released on $150 bond. He has been charged with speeding, resisting arrest and assaulting an officer.

Neighbors Want Ann's Closed

Scheduled to go before the grand jury this week are residents of Wildwood who are concerned over the fact that Ann's Place on highway 70 is still open.

After a Marine, Clayton B. Hall, was shot there, and later died, promises had been made by the owners, through their attorney, that the place would be closed up by June 1.

The beer joint is still operating. It has been placed off limits by Marine Corps authorities.

Signs posted by the door on the building were ripped down several times by the operators of the place. Then the off-limits signs were put on property at either side of Ann's.

Sonny Sykes, the man charged with shooting the Marine, is on trial now in this session of superior court. Probable cause was found in his case in recorder's court, and the March grand jury returned a true bill on manslaughter. The Sykes case started yesterday afternoon.

The back door of the rear building of Machine and Supply Co., Beaufort-Morehead causeway, was battered down between 7 and 8 p.m. Saturday. Sheriff Hugh Salter said it is not known yet whether anything was taken.

War on Mosquitoes Opens Yesterday

Mayor George W. Dill Jr., Morehead City, has proclaimed this week "War on Mosquito Week" in Morehead City.

The mayor, in cooperation with the Morehead City Finer Carolina committee, is asking cooperation of residents in cleaning up their property, cutting down weeds, getting rid of standing water and putting oil-soaked sawdust bags in marshes or stagnant water.

The town will also start its summer mosquito spraying program this week.

Rotary Club Begins Programs on Port

The Morehead City Rotary Club began a series of programs on the state port Thursday night. Program chairman George Dill introduced William Davies of Morehead Shipping Co. as the first guest speaker.

Mr. Davis discussed the mechanics of port operation and told what role MorShipCo played in the overall port picture. Another person closely connected with the port will be with the club when it meets this week at the Rex Restaurant.

President Grover Munden read a letter from the district governor informing the club that it was in the top 10 in attendance for the quarter.

Two Youths Held For Entering

In the county jail yesterday were Earl Vernon Webb, 18, Goldsboro, and Thomas Eugene Malpass, 17, Kinston. They are being held on charges of breaking and entering the C. L. Deer cottage, Atlantic Beach.

Sheriff Hugh Salter said the boys went in the cottage Thursday night. They spent the night there and then returned Friday afternoon. As they were walking out of the cottage, Friday, a man who rents it, Joe Sonze, saw them, and turned their description over to the Atlantic Beach police.

The two were picked up by beach police chief Bill Moore. Sheriff Hugh Salter said that the boys apparently did not steal anything, but were using the cottage as a hotel, and having meals there.

Malpass was under a two-year suspended sentence.

Haven for Happy Yachtsmen

In the Morehead City area are numerous marinas. Here yachts ride at safe anchorage in Pelletier Creek, a picturesque stream just west of Morehead City. The creek empties into Bogue Sound and the sound joins the Atlantic Ocean at Beaufort Inlet. The sleek "craft" in the foreground is another of Morehead City's attractions. Her name is Marguerite. Her phone number is unknown.

Oystermen Give Suggestions To Improve Oyster Resources

Ten oystermen of the county met with Roy Watson, president of the North Carolina Fisheries Association, at Atlantic Friday night to discuss the state oyster program.

They made several recommendations which, when incorporated with thoughts of other oystermen along the coast, will be placed before the commercial fisheries committee of the Board of Conservation and Development Saturday, July 19, at Morehead City.

Mr. Watson said the NCFA is interested in doing "something constructive" to improve oyster production. He said the oyster supply should be restored, and then it should be maintained without the state's having to pour thousands of dollars into it every year.

Third in Series

Atlantic's meeting was the third in a series. Meetings have already been held at Hobucken and Englehard. Two more are scheduled for Sneed's Ferry and Mattamuskeet.

Fred Whitaker, secretary of the NCFA, gave the highlights of the Hobucken meeting. He said that the Hobucken oystermen agreed on the following:

1. The state isn't getting what it pays for in shells
2. Spat has died due to changes in the salinity of the water
3. Rocks should be checked annually to see if spat has set
4. Seed oysters should be planted thinner; 500-800 bushels an acre was suggested.
5. "Indiscriminate stripping" of oyster rock was opposed
6. They want the board of conservation and development and scientists to confer with oystermen in local areas before seeding
7. Want 100 pound dredge limit enforced, as well as 3-inch cull law

Carteret Recommendations

Carteret oystermen made the following recommendations:

1. Keep oyster season closed until November 1 (season now opens in October).
2. Stricter supervision of planting program, requiring boats doing the planting to keep moving as the seed is put overboard rather than dumping a whole boatload in one spot.
3. Enforce culling of oysters on spot where taken
4. A local committee should be set up to state where oysters should be planted and how many
5. Restrict Back, North and Thoroughfare Bays to tonging only
6. No "vacationers", summer people or anyone else should be permitted to catch "a mess of oysters" for home use during the closed season
7. The new program should be given a two-year trial

Mr. Watson explained that the recommendations of oystermen at See OYSTERMEN, Page 2

Car Rams Rear Of Auto Saturday

One car ran into the rear of another at 3:45 p.m. Saturday two miles east of Beaufort on highway 70.

Matilda May Gillikin of route 1 Beaufort, driving a 1955 Ford, was struck in the rear by a 1951 Oldsmobile driven by Barbara Ann Gillikin, also of route 1 Beaufort.

The Ford had stopped behind another car which was attempting a left turn. Each car had passengers in it. Barbara Ann Gillikin, the only one hurt, suffered skinned knees. No charges were filed.

Damage to the Ford was estimated at $75. Damage to the Oldsmobile was estimated at $450. Patrolman W. J. Smith Jr. investigated.

Work at Institute

Eddie Smithwick, a student of the University of North Carolina, and Warren Bell, a graduate student at the University of Kansas, are working at the Institute of Fisheries Research, Camp Glenn, this summer. A student from Cornell University will begin work later.

Air Force Men Will Meet Here

Lt. Col. John Stockton (USAF), commander of the Raleigh Air Reserve Center; Col. Ray Whitley, commander of the 9179th Air Reserve Group, and Lt. Col. Farmer Smith, executive officer of the Group, have announced that a commanders conference will convene in Morehead City the weekend of June 14, 1958.

Approximately 30 Air Force Reserve officers from eastern North Carolina will attend. The purpose of this conference will be to plan the training program for the fiscal year 1959.

This conference will be held at the Camp Glenn School and will be conducted by staff officers of the 9179th Air Reserve Group.

The host squadron is the 9948th located in Kinston, commanded by Lt. Col. A. L. Garner. Capt. Jasper Lewis of the 9948th and 1st Lt. Julian Murphy of Flight E, Morehead City, are the project officers for this conference. It is anticipated that reservists will bring their families and enjoy the beaches.

A social hour is planned at the Morehead Biltmore Hotel.

Two Apprehended

Stanley Dixon and Irene Smith, Newport, were arrested Friday night at Newport by the sheriff's department. They are charged with cohabitation. Each has posted $250 bond for appearance in recorder's court June 26.

Father of Year Ballots Must be in Tomorrow

The deadline for nominating your dad for Father of the Year is 10 a.m. tomorrow. Entry ballots may be picked up or turned in at the Morehead City Drug Co., Sanitary Restaurant, Hamilton's Furniture Center, Leary's, Hill's, Early Jewelers, Belk's, Western Auto, Webb's, E. W. Downum Department Stores and the newspaper office.

To nominate your father, all you have to do is fill in the entry blank telling why you think he should be father of the year. There is nothing to buy and no box tops to send in. This is one of the easiest contests anyone can enter. The winning father will receive valuable clothing, sports equipment, jewelry and a free dinner for his family.

Last year's winner, the Rev. Sam S. Moore of Morehead City, said that being named father of the year was one of the greatest thrills of his life. "The gifts are fine," he said, "but even more wonderful was the honor that came from being selected."
