Picnic at Gilchrist Home Ends Year for Beaufort Woman's Club

At Howland Rock Farm, the home of the W. W. Gilchrist, on the roomy porch with louvered windows and two huge fire places of old brick, members of the Beaufort Woman's Club gathered Tuesday bringing covered dishes for a get-together and informal discussion.

Cool drinks were served in beverage glasses with Gift from the Sea design—a gift from the vice-president, Mrs. Gilchrist, to the president, Mrs. C. W. Davis.

Mrs. Davis presented Mrs. Gilchrist a compote—a Baret Ware creation made in England by master craftsmen showing Windsor, Alnwick, and other famous castles.

The Woman's Club gave Mrs. Davis gold embossed book ends.

The two new officers, Mrs. G. W. Duncan, president, and Mrs. Pat Warren, vice-president, were installed.

Mrs. Pat Warren, Miss Grace Wilson, and Mrs. H. G. Loftin will be on the program committee for the coming year. Other committees will be announced later.

The Woman's Club scrap book for 1957-58 was dedicated to Mrs. W. L. Bell, who for several years did such a splendid job on the scrap book.

Folders to be used in the coming Old Homes Tour arrived from the printer just in time for club members to receive samples. On the Old Homes Tour folder is a sketch of the Buckman House, home of the George Taylors, on Ann Street.

Inside the folder is historical information about the four homes to be open for the tour. They are the Buckman House, the Cheek House, the Hatsell House, and the Taylor House.

The second folder pictures a design of the Old Cemetery gates, with a background of live oaks and markers. The original was made for the Woman's Club by Mrs. Leslie Davis.

Information for both folders was compiled by Miss Amy Muse, authority on the history of the old port of Beaufort.

Since the club announced that Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Paul would guide morning tours of places of historical interest in Beaufort, they have been deluged with requests that tours be conducted for conventions and other groups meeting in the vicinity.

The morning tours will end at the Inlet Inn where Mr. and Mrs. Dewey have graciously consented to serve a luncheon of sea food and other delicacies to a limited number of guests.

Headquarters for information and the sale of tickets has been changed from the Chamber of Commerce to the office of the Duncan Insurance Co. at 517 Front St.
