WSCS Conducts Sessions on Race

The final two of a series of four discussions on Christ, the Church and Race will be conducted Monday and Wednesday nights at St. James Methodist Church, Newport. The discussions are being sponsored by the Woman's Society of Christian Service under the direction of Mrs. Charles Hill, missions study chairman.

The subject of Monday night's discussion, which will begin at 7:30, will be What the Christian Churches Say About Racial Discrimination and Segregation. A panel discussion will be held by Mrs. Melvin Edwards.

At the Wednesday meeting, which also starts at 7:30, the Rev. Ralph Fleming, pastor, will lead a panel discussion, What Should Christians Do?

The leader at the first session was the Rev. Jack Crum, Wynwood Park Methodist Church, Raleigh, who spoke on what the Bible says about race and segregation. Speakers at the second session were the Rev. Reinhard Brosse who talked on racism as a world issue. The Rev. Mr. Fleming spoke on what science says about race.

July 16—The official board of the Methodist church met in the church Monday night. Mr. Joe Mason Jr. was re-elected, chairman, and Mrs. Winston Hill, secretary. The business that was brought forth included repairs to be made at the parsonage, the reordering of literature, and a deed showing the exact land of the church. The new budget was set and accepted for the conference year and the local church.

Members voted to meet each quarter and discuss business that had been presented to them by the several Commissions. The invocation was given by Rev. David Lewis.

WSCS Meets
The Woman's Society of Christian Service held its joint meeting at the Scout building July 8. Mrs. Mary Morris presented the program, The World Federation of Methodist Women. It consisted of a series of letters about a meeting being held at Lake Junaluska. This was followed by an interesting discussion on missions. The Mary Morris Circle served punch and cookies.
