Good News About

By Harry Venters, 4-H Advisor

Dear 4-H Clubber:
I'm writing you this week from Swannanoa 4-H Camp. George Simpson, Smyrna 4-H'er, and I are attending wildlife camp. George won a scholarship to camp by being last year's wildlife projects winner. I know that a lot of you have wildlife projects, so why don't you be a winner this year and win a week at camp? Work hard on your project and turn in a good, neat project book.

One of the things that surprised me most is the number of girls who have wildlife projects. Very few, if any girls, in Carteret are taking this project, and I think they are missing a great opportunity. There are nearly as many girls here at wildlife camp as boys, and they are all here on scholarships as wildlife winners from their counties. Girls, wouldn't you like to go next year?

One of the outstanding features of this camp is an overnight camping trip. We left camp Thursday morning and visited Craggy Gardens, Mt. Mitchell, and the Mt. Mitchell conservation area. At night we found ourselves at Crabtree Meadows. Crabtree Meadows is a picnic and camping area on the Blue Ridge Parkway. It received its name because of the beautiful crabtrees that must really be a wonderful sight when they are in bloom.

Iraqi Students Speak to Club

Two graduate students from Duke Marine Lab, Pivers Island, were the guests of the Beaufort Rotary Club Tuesday night at the Scout building. Majid Al-Radhawy and Iyad Nadr, both natives of Iraq, spoke on the government, educational system and economic life of their country.

The two students are studying at the University of Illinois and are taking a course in marine invertebrate zoology at the lab. Both are graduates of the University of Baghdad.

Vice-president Stanley Potter presided in the absence of president B. E. Tarkington. Visiting Rotarians were George Dill, Morehead City, and George O'Dell, Kannapolis. Dr. David Farrior will be in charge of tonight's program.

Crabtree Falls are also here and a splendid sight they are as they tumble 60 feet.
After a wonderful outdoor supper and one of the most impressive vespers ever put on by 4-H'ers, we slept in sleeping bags furnished by the camp. Everyone had a wonderful time on this overnight tour.

The purpose of this camp or conference is to teach boys and girls wildlife conservation. As we enjoy this conference, the beauty and grandeur of this wonderful mountain region, the clear streams, with an abundance of game, fish and wildlife, we realize that except for the foresightedness and untiring efforts of people interested in wildlife conservation, this picture would not prevail.

The 4-H conservation program provides you an opportunity to improve and perpetuate God-given natural resources for your own enjoyment and the enrichment of generations that follow.

I'd like to tell you more about wildlife camp and about State 4-H Club Week which was last week, but I'll have to do that later. Right now it's time for swimming so I'll have to close.

I wish that all you 4-H'ers were here with George and me.

Sincerely,
Harry Venters

July 30—The Methodist Youth Fellowship attended the Morehead subdistrict meeting at North River. Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Reinhart Brose of Germany. He spoke on the Methodist youth in Germany.

Mr. Brose is a graduate of the theological school in Germany and is working on his master's degree at Duke University. When Mr. Brose returns to Germany he will be pastor of a church right next to the "Iron Curtain". He will also be the interpreter for "Youth Caravans" in his country.

Group singing was led by Mr. Brose. North River gave very good devotions. Refreshments were served at the close of a successful meeting.

A Christian Convocation will be held at Duke University Aug. 4 through 7 for preachers from South Carolina, Virginia, and North Carolina. The Rev. David Lewis will attend.

First quarterly conference will meet at Atlantic Methodist Church Sept. 7 at 11 a.m. Superintendent A. J. Hobbs of New Bern will preside.

Weekly visitation prayer service will be Friday night in the home of Mrs. Dan Morris. Mr. Cecil O. Morris will conduct the service.

Miss Jean Bell is a delegate from the Methodist Church to the annual conference session at Duke University. It will meet Aug. 11-15.

Club Meets
Atlantic Home Demonstration club had its monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Albin Beacham Friday at 2 p.m. Nine members were present.

Demonstration presented was a "Punch Needle Work" by Miss Carol Beacham. A rug was used for the demonstration.

Mr. and Mrs. James Floyd of Morehead City visited the Allen Beachams over the weekend.

Mrs. Winston Hill is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Ross Archer, in Greensboro for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Hill and family left Tuesday for Germany where Mr. Hill will be stationed for the next three years.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Viverette and family from Greensboro are visiting the Cecil Morris's for a few days.

Wanda and Katherine Purifoy of Morehead City are visiting their cousins, Carol and June Styron and Brenda Smith.

Mrs. Norway Morris of Norfolk, Va., attended Mrs. Bertie Robinson's funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Robinson and three children, Jimmie, Patricia and Elizabeth of Vaceboro spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stallings.

Mr. and Mrs. George Coyman and children, Carroll and Michael, Miss Elizabeth Stallings of Rochelle Park, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thompson and daughter, Linda of Arlington, N. J., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stallings.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson of Beaufort RFD spent a while with his mother, Mrs. Emily Nelson on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Howard and children Susan and Tommy of Kingston spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Florence Salter.

It's Storytime Three Princesses of Whiteland

(Last week's story: A young lad was pulled in his fishing boat, by some unseen force, to Whiteland. There he met an old man who told him he would find three Princesses, buried up to their necks in the ground. He was warned not to go near the first two, but to speak only to the third. And now, on with our story.)

When the lad came to the first Princess, she called out to him and begged him so prettily to come to her, but he passed on as though he did not see her. In the same way he passed the second, but to the third Princess he went straight up.

"If you'll do what I bid you," she said, "you may have which of us you please."

Yes, he was willing enough; so she told him how three Trolls had set them down in the earth there, but before, they had lived in the castle up among the trees.

"Now," she said, "you must go into that castle and let the Trolls whip you one night for each of us. If you can bear that, you'll set us free."

Well, the lad declared that he was ready to try.

"When you go in," the Princess went on to say, "you'll see two lions standing at the gate, but if you'll only go right in the middle between them, they'll do you no harm. Then go straight on into a little dark room and make your bed."

"Then the Troll will come to whip you; but if you take the flask which hangs on the wall, and rub yourself with the ointment that's in it, wherever his lash falls, you'll be as sound as ever. Then grasp the sword that hangs by the side of the flask and strike the Troll dead."

Yes, he did as the Princess told him; he passed in the midst between the lions, as if he hadn't seen them and went straight into the little room and there he lay down to sleep. The first night, there came a Troll with three heads and three rods, and whipped the lad soundly; but he stood it till the Troll was done. Then he took the flask and rubbed himself, and grasped the sword and slew the Troll.

So, when he went out next morning, the Princesses stood out of the earth up to their waists.

The next night 'twas the same story over again, only this time the Troll had six heads and six rods, and he whipped him far worse than the first. But when he went out the next morning, the Princesses stood out of the earth as far as the knee.

The third night there came a Troll that had nine heads and nine rods, and he whipped and flogged the lad so long he fainted away. Then the Troll took him up and dashed him against the wall, but the shock brought down the flask, which fell on the lad, burst and spilled the ointment all over him, and so he became as strong and sound as ever again. Then he wasn't slow; he grasped the sword and slew the Troll. And the next morning when he went out of the castle the Princesses stood before him with all their bodies out of the earth.

So he took the youngest for his Queen, and lived well and happily with her ever after.

My Little Kitten

I have a little yellow and white kitten. His name is Ice Cream Face. He is as fuzzy as he can be. I like to feed him very much. Every night I let him outdoors. He comes to the door every morning and begs to come in.

He always wants something to eat. So I give him some milk and meat. Some nights when I go to bed he comes and gets in bed with me. I like kittens. Do you?
