Citizens Educated

When voters in Tenafly, N. J. defeated an expanded school budget, the Tenafly Drama Workshop undertook a documentary project aimed at educating citizens to the need for education. The presentation drew nightly attendances of 300 to 500.

Good Desserts

Cookies with cereal, raisins, nuts and other nutritionally good ingredients make ideal school lunch box desserts. Served with milk, always available at school, they provide a happy topper for the mid-day meal and are easy to carry.

Discourage Parking

University of Buffalo is charging students a 10 cent fee for parking their cars on campus lots, with the hope of inducing them to use some other form of transportation. There is now room for 3,000 cars.

Back-to-School Fashions Put Accent on Youthful Figures

By MRS. BERYL TUCKER
Fashion Editor of Parents' Magazine

What a joy to be young when almost every aspect of back-to-school fashions for fall 1958 puts the accent on youth. First, there is color to brighten every classroom from Maine to California, golden and russet browns, flaming reds, foliage greens to vie with the autumn landscape. Then, there is the chemise and the trapeze.

While the adult world has trembled and wavered over these changes in fashion, young ladies of 2 through 12 have adopted them as their very own.

Certainly, both of these silhouettes are becoming to children, the loose fit at the waistline disguising little tummies, allowing plenty of room for movement. Furthermore, there is a child-like simplicity about chemises and trapezes for all the Parisian heritage.

We think you'll find the bright cotton plaid jumper chemise with a simple blouse an ideal way for your daughter to look on school mornings. Or she might wear one of the new flounced chemises in a wool-like cotton tweed, the top of the flounce marked by a patent leather belt. Many of these dresses are available in wash and wear fabrics that require a minimum of care.

When the first party of the school year is at hand, a trapeze dress in a rich ruby red velveteen or a gay turquoise floral print is certain of success. After all, the paneled cut and flaring skirt are slightly reminiscent of the classic princess silhouette.

Sportswear Surprises

There are also handsome coats in both of the new silhouettes and a variety of fabrics from which to choose, jewel-toned tweeds, rich knit-look woolens, bold brushed blanket plaids. Some may boast a fur collar.

Sportswear holds all sorts of delightful surprises for the young shopper, abounds in exciting colors, patterns and textures.

Smocks Approved

Protective smocks for the grade school girl to wear during art or science studies are particularly appropriate this season, now that smock-like trapeze styles have captured the young girls' fancy.

More and more high schools are arranging for students to get a foretaste of what it means to be a scientist, by helping them get jobs in appropriate plants during vacation seasons.

For a world of fashion, this turnabout cardigan is reversible, can be worn as a cow-collared slip-on.

Good Lighting Curbs Eye Strain

Good lighting is indispensable to the school child's homework to avoid eye strain and the fatigue and inability to concentrate it can cause. Fixtures will vary according to the space and personal preferences, but in general try to follow these principles.

Some light should fall directly on the work center, of course, but not there exclusively.

The whole table top should be lighted (wall lamps often do this best) and the room itself should have good overall illumination.

Table lamps should have light shades, translucent enough that light doesn't glare. Use at least a 100-watt bulb and, if possible, choose a student lamp with a bowl or other type diffuser. Lamps should be placed well back on the desk and left of work center.

Sweaters Continue as Top Item in Girl's Wardrobe

Sweaters, in the new wonder yarns, in wool or cashmere, in fur or mohair blends, continue to be the one fashion a college girl is most likely to build her wardrobe around.

Pairing with the sweaters and other tops are skirts that range from straight to pleated to flounced to trapeze-line.
