Car Demolished When Tie Rod Comes Loose

A 1949 Chrysler driven by George Newman, Salter Path, was demolished at 11:45 p.m. Thursday on the Salter Path Road when a tie rod came loose.

The car veered off to the right and hit a tree. The accident happened four miles west of Atlantic Beach. Newman was not hurt. Patrolman R. H. Brown investigated.

Crab Point

Young swains from Morehead City who rowed across the creek to visit the girls, would announce their intentions by saying they were going over the creek to see the "calico girls." If the name was derived from the time of the visit of these young men, it would set the time of naming the creek some 65 years ago.

To envisage the future of Crab Point would be to see it developed into a fine residential adjunct to Morehead City.

Paper Company Revises Dredging Plans in Nouse

International Paper Co., Georgetown, S. C., has submitted revised plans to the Army engineers on dredge work in Nouse River near the mouth of Scott's Creek at James City, near New Bern.

The revised plans show approximately 15,000 cubic yards of material is to be removed, including two small islands in Scott's Creek. The dredged material is to be deposited on property owned by the applicant.

A 120-foot steel bulkhead and two loading aprons are to be constructed along the shoreline of the creek. Also, six nine-pile dolphins are to be constructed in Nouse River and five nine-pile dolphins in Scott's Creek. Plans showing the proposed work may be seen in the postoffice at New Bern.

Any person or firm having objections to the work from the standpoint of navigation are to contact the Wilmington Army engineers' office by Monday, Nov. 10.

Two Rotarians Go to Dunn Meeting

Thomas Noe and W. B. Chalk attended a Rotary district conference in Dunn last week. The conference dealt with problems of membership and classification.

As the Thursday night club program, Mr. Chalk conducted a question and answer forum dealing with situations and conditions which every Rotary club encounters as normal problems in respect to its membership.

Officer Recalls 'Good Old Days'

Fourteen years ago Saturday, Nov. 3, Carlton Garner joined the Beaufort police force.

Mr. Garner, now assistant chief of police, recalls that the "good old days" on the police force weren't so good. When he first went on the force, officers weren't paid in cash.

If they needed groceries, the town clerk, Murray Thomas, gave the officer a credit slip. Then the officer carried the credit slip to Jones Grocery, for example, and got groceries. The amount of groceries was then credited to the Jones Grocery town tax account.

The same process was followed in getting wearing apparel. "The town had no money," officer Garner explains.

Of his 14 years on the force, he served two and a half as chief, six as assistant chief and for six years and seven months held down the night shift alone.

On night duty, there was no Front Street police station to take shelter in. If it rained, the policeman got wet and if it was cold, he stood in doorways of stores to keep warm.

There was one pistol and one blackjack in the department. The officer on night duty turned it over to the chief when the chief came on duty in the morning.

As for a police car, it was more a myth than a fact, officer Garner recalls. "The paddy wagon was broken down half the time. It had only four tires and if one blew out, we couldn't use the wagon until it was fixed."

Officer Garner's pay when he first went on the force was $115 a month and the town, he said, bought the officers a pair of pants or a jacket about once every two years.

The assistant chief says he has failed to report for work only four days during the 14. On two of those days he was sick and the other two he had to take off because of sickness in his family.

Today, officer Garner says, the town clerk, Dan Walker, never fails to have his pay check ready for him. "I think the town should give him a lot of credit. He's not only built up the police department but other departments in the town. It certainly is nice to get cash for pay instead of goods."

Swimming Keeps Woman in Shape

Elmira, N. Y. (AP)—When the gray hair and wrinkles begin to show, "get in the swim," advises a great grandmother.

Swimming keeps her young, says Mrs. Archie W. Lamb. Admitting 60-odd years, Mrs. Lamb swims and dives three nights a week at the YWCA pool.

Until three years ago, Mrs. Lamb couldn't swim and was afraid to go over her depth in the water.

It took a lot of courage to join the swimming class, she relates, but she told herself: "I'm not getting any younger so I may as well do it now."

Mrs. Lamb recommends swimming for elderly folks. "As you know," she says, "when you get older, your circulation slows down and this swimming is excellent for stimulation. You can't beat swimming for relaxation and recreation."
