While one puss watches from above on the stepladder, another says its prayers. At least, that is the interpretation put on this picture by Reginald Lewis, whose pictures of cats have appeared frequently in THE NEWS-TIMES.

Want to Know State's Policy On Roads? New Booklet Tells

Raleigh — The State Highway Commission has announced publication and distribution of a new booklet on the maintenance and improvement of the state's secondary roads.

which the highway commission has established for both maintenance and improvement of rural roads. In order that all citizens may know where to go for further information on Secondary Road matters, a listing of highway division and highway district engineers is included in the back of the newly published booklet.

Prepared by the public relations department of the State Highway Commission, the 23-page illustrated booklet explains in detail the priority system for paving rural secondary roads and the general procedures for distribution of available secondary road funds among the state's 100 counties.

In addition, the publication details the three factors which determine the position of roads to be paved on the priority list which is posted in each county courthouse. Individual road ratings are determined on the basis of land-use characteristics, public service characteristics and average annual 24-hour traffic count. A sample rating sheet, used by highway commission engineers, is included in the booklet.

Other sections explain how secondary roads are added to the system, how sub-division and residential streets may be paved, and the policies of the State Highway Commission on construction of access roads to schools, industries and public facilities. Also defined is the adopted level of service for secondary roads established by the State Highway Commission in the fall of 1957.

Public relations officer Sam Beard said copies of the booklet have been placed in the hands of all division and district engineers of the State Highway Commission and are available from all county boards of commissioners.

In announcing the distribution of the new booklet, Mr. Beard said the highway commission feels it is imperative that all persons living along secondary roads understand the state-wide procedures

Modern Greek Dramas to Play

New York (AP)—Modern Greek dramas are to be shown on Broadway for the first time by James S. Elliott.

Elliott last year took the first American acting company to Athens for performance of Greek classics, and while there became intrigued by the dramatic possibilities for U. S. audiences of works by contemporary Greek authors.

He plans to present three short plays in a triple bill: "Requiem" by Nikos Kazantzakis; "A Face in the Daylight," by M. S. Crispis; and "Mister Cookoo," by Jacob Coombell.
