NORTH CAROLINA

FACES A CHALLENGING FUTURE

For some 290 nautical miles the famous Inland Waterway cuts through eastern North Carolina rivers and sounds to provide a safe inside, all weather water route preferred by shallow craft, freighters, barges and nearly all of the North-South yacht traffic. The route passes many of the most interesting and historical spots in North Carolina with frequent yacht basins offering every facility, enhanced by unspoiled native hospitality and atmosphere. Every year its traffic is increasing.

The natives of Eastern North Carolina, as in most coastal areas, are born to face up to realities in a practical manner, which is one reason why this area subscribes to the "legal control" system of beer and ale as being in the best interests of all concerned.
