

Order Puts Two Small Areas Within Beaufort Town Limits

An order signed in superior court Wednesday by Judge Albert Cowper annexes two small areas to the town of Beaufort.

The areas are a small segment of the section around the Highway 70-Lennoxville intersection and a portion of the land just east of the present town limits.

Both have sewer lines and even though out of town, have in the past been serviced by town workmen, according to testimony offered in a recent hearing at New Bern on the annexation matter.

Opponents of the annexation, have given notice of appeal to the supreme court. Bond was set at $100.

The order also requires the town to file plans showing proposed installation of sewage lines. These plans are to be placed in the hands of the clerk of superior court by Sept. 21 (or 90 days after the court order was signed).

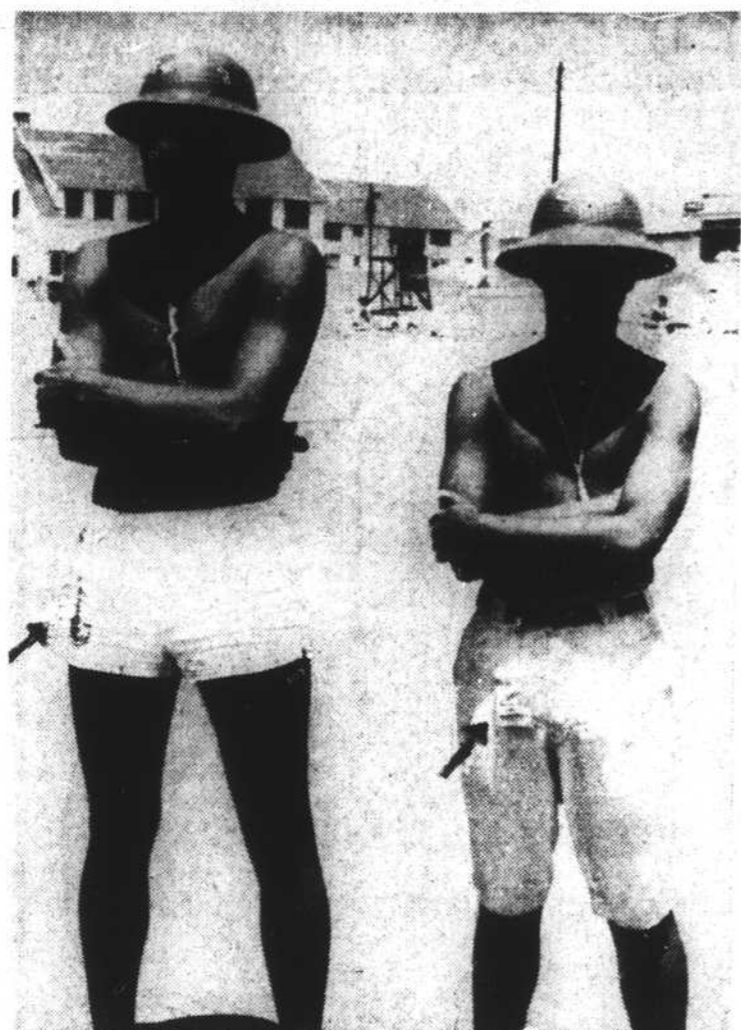

If this is not done by that time, the ordinance of Jan. 11, 1960, adopted by the Beaufort town board becomes void. This ordinance annexes areas lying beyond Beaufort, including Hancock, Highland Parks, Jones village and other sections.

The sewage plans requested would show plans to put sewage facilities in those areas.

Claud Wheatly, town attorney, said yesterday that the town expects to file such plans.

Fighting the annexation procedure being undertaken by the town are certain residents of the areas affected. The pending suit against the town of Beaufort is filed in the name of G. W. Huntley Jr. and others.

Safety Aid Added

Allen Antry, Beaufort, left, and Sam Yeomans, Harkers Island, lifeguards at Atlantic Beach, wear at their belts the new compact water wings, which inflate if guard squeezes them.

Something new has been added to Atlantic Beach lifeguard equipment this summer—ResQpaks. These are folded compact waterwings which lifeguards wear on their belts. If the guard gets into trouble bringing a swimmer in (perhaps the swimmer pulls both under), the lifeguard squeezes the ResQpak. It automatically inflates.

Bill Moore, chief of police, said that lifeguard Sam Yeomans, Harkers Island, used his emergency pack when a woman swimmer kept dragging both of them under. The waterwings inflated immediately and popped them to the surface.

The new device was used on a trial basis at first, now is standard equipment.

After the wings inflate, they cannot be used again. Chief Moore also reports that another rescuator is being bought. The rescuator now in use at Atlantic Beach was bought with funds contributed by NEWS-TIMES readers.

Fire Breaks Out Wednesday In City Grocery

Water Damage Termed Extensive

Loss is Third for Firm Since April 1959

The third catastrophe since April 3, 1959 hit the City Grocery in Beaufort Wednesday night when a fire, believed caused by electrical wiring, broke out.

On April 3, 1959, thieves broke in and made off with approximately $1,400 in cash and between $1,200 to $1,400 in stock certificates, checks and bonds.

Then on Sept. 12, 1960, the day-long hurricane Donna struck. The City Grocery building suffered extensive damage and the stock was a complete loss.

The Wednesday night fire was discovered by Robert Robinson, who turned in the fire alarm at box 16 at 9:55.

Fire damage was slight, but damage due to water is estimated in the thousands.

Leslie Moore, owner, said the loss is partially insured. The store was closed yesterday.

Marines Return From Caribbean

Marines and equipment returning from the Caribbean arrived at Morehead City port this week.

Three units of Second division Marines, Camp Lejeune, came home after being called to the Caribbean when the Dominican Republic's Trujillo was assassinated about four weeks ago.

Military information officers claimed the units were departing to participate in maneuvers and exercises, but the movement was, primarily, a precautionary measure in case Castro forces would seize upon the assassination as an excuse to move into the nearby Dominican Republic.

The exercise was called "Able Grease" and involved 50 ships of the Atlantic fleet. Returning to Lejeune this week were Battalion Landing Team 1-6, commanded by Lt. Col. W. C. Joslyn; Battalion Landing Team 2-6, commanded by Lt. Col. D. L. Faw; and the 4th MEB, commanded by Maj. Gen. James P. Berkeley.

Motor Lodge To Open Sunday

Everyone is invited to the open house at the Buccaneer Motor Lodge Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Construction of the 64-unit motel and coffee shop building was started early in April. This week climaxes the 10th week of work on the buildings.

Owners of the lodge, Cherry Construction Company, general contractor, and other building firms taking part in the construction have commissioned a special section of this issue of the Carteret County News-Times.

As this paper went to press, last minute work on the motel was in progress.

For more information about the Buccaneer Motor Lodge see section 4.

Bids Requested

The Fifth Coast Guard district has requested bids on a new lifeboat station and equipment at Cape Hatteras. Bids will be received until July 11 at Portsmouth, Va.

Bill, Pushed Through Capitol, Validates County Action on Hospital

A bill introduced in the legislature Tuesday and passed that day by both the House and the Senate validates what county commissioners have done thus far in relation to a county hospital.

The bill was introduced by Sen. Luther Hamilton, Morehead City, who in private practice has served as attorney for Earle Webb, from whom the county proposes to buy property for a hospital, and who, with his son, Luther Jr., county attorney, has been defending the county in the current law suit brought by Beaufort interests to block hospital construction.

Carteret's representative in the House, D. G. Bell, said that Tuesday he and two members of the attorney general's office and John Morrissey, counsel for the League of Municipalities, went over the bill before it went through the House.

The members of the attorney general's office said the bill was in order and that legislative action of that type had been taken in other cases similar to the county hospital dispute.

Claud Wheatly, Attorney, Comments on Hospital Case

Commenting on the recent supreme court decision on the county hospital case, Claud Wheatly, attorney for those objecting to the county's action, said yesterday, "I hope that the county board will attempt to arbitrate this matter and find a site suitable to all concerned, or if failing that, effect some sort of referendum and let the people vote on this thing."

The supreme court Friday reversed a superior court ruling which in effect authorized the county to proceed with construction of a hospital on the Earle Webb property on Bogue sound, west of Morehead City.

Pin-pointing the significance of the supreme court's decision, Mr. Wheatly said, "In my opinion, it entitles the court to review the action of the county commissioners to see if the county commissioners are truly acting for the public good."

The attorney continued, "In our suit we alleged that prior to issuing hospital bonds, the county said it would refinance its present debt. Although the bonds were not actually issued, the county attempted to sell an anticipatory note for $100,000."

Mr. Wheatly said that the court agreed that the note was, in effect, part of a bond issue. Proceeds from sale of the note were to go for purchase of a hospital site and paying of architect's fees. He continued, "If the people had been advised that the issue was predicated on refinancing, the anticipatory note was 'in violation'."

(Luther Hamilton Jr., county attorney, says that the bond order, at no point, states that the present debt was to be refinanced prior to issuing hospital bonds. He said this decision was made following the issuing of the bond order and the Nov. 8, 1961 vote, upon advice of bond attorneys. They felt that it would improve chances to get better interest rates on the note).

The supreme court decision says in part, "... we THINK the complaint alleges . . . (capitalization)

Two Ships Due At Port Today

Morehead City port officials are expecting foreign flag vessels at the port today, the Oakville, a Norwegian ship, which will load tobacco for the Far East, and the Heidelberg, German ship, which will take on tobacco for Antwerp, Rotterdam, Hamburg, Amsterdam and Bremen.

The strike between American seamen and owners of American lines is now a week old, with no hope of early settlement.

Morehead City longshoremen say they will load and unload foreign flag vessels, but not ships owned by American firms.

The Exchange, an American Export line ship, under normal conditions is scheduled to stop at Morehead City Sunday, if there is cargo to be picked up. It is doubtful that the ship is meeting any schedule because of the strike.

Even if there were cargo at the port, it is not expected that the ship if under way, would call, since local longshoremen would not be available to load it.

Navy vessels docked at the port this week, returning Marines from the Caribbean.

Way Cleared for New Highway

Bulldozers this week have been clearing the way for the new dual lane highway into Morehead City. This shows the highway just west of the Blue Ribbon restaurant, facing west. Felled trees are piled at either side of the present highway.

D. G. Bell Expected To Get Highway Post

Tobacco Queen Will Sail from Port

Miss Emmalee Gaddy, tobacco beauty queen, and her mother, will sail from Morehead City port next Friday, bound for Europe.

The trip, to promote Morehead City as a tobacco port, has been arranged by the State Ports Authority.

The Gaddys will sail aboard the Niedersachsen, an Ocean Stines line cargo ship with passenger accommodations. The Niedersachsen, named for a province in Germany, will dock at Antwerp, Rotterdam, Hamburg and Bremen.

Rocky Mount Man Drowns

The first drowning of the season at the beach occurred between 2 and 2:30 yesterday afternoon a short distance east of the protected swimming area. The victim is Billy Dean Janzen, 33, 1214 S. Church St., Rocky Mount.

Janzen, his wife and several others were spending the day at the beach, according to police chief Bill Moore. Beach lifeguards went to Janzen when they noticed he seemed to be in distress, but he was apparently dead by the time they reached him. Efforts to revive him failed.

Chief Moore said that the tides are high and the surf rough. He requested that swimmers bath only where there is lifeguard protection.

Two swimmers were also rescued from the surf at Salter Path yesterday afternoon. Their last names were Zuck and Nelson. Both were hospitalized.

Carteret's legislator, D. G. Bell, is slated for membership on Gov. Terry Sanford's new State Highway commission.

This information was revealed by a Raleigh newspaper yesterday. Formal announcement of Sanford's choices for the commission is not expected until July 2, after he returns from the governor's conference in Hawaii.

Mr. Bell's phenomenal influence in the legislature this session is attributed as the reason for Sanford's choosing him for one of the posts on the 19-member highway commission. A "Hodges man," Mr. Bell was viewed with skepticism by the Sanford party in the opening days of the legislature.

The Carteret representative, however, was influential in smoothing the way for many administrative measures, and was helpful in getting through Sanford's monumental education program which involves a 3 per cent sales tax on food.

Fulfilling his fourth term in the legislature, Mr. Bell went to Raleigh in February with experience and leadership sadly lacking in the House this session.

Mr. Bell's success is partially embodied in his political philosophy that laws should be passed which will be of greatest benefit to the people.

He is quick to note legislation with "quirks" in it, clauses which could cause future trouble, and he is not afraid to seek advice of persons well-acquainted with the subject at hand or who have had legal experience in handling local and statewide laws.

It is presumed that Mr. Bell will be the consultant on bridge and other coastal highway problems. Sanford several months ago named Merrill Evans, Aboskie, as chairman of the commission. Also officially appointed is Clifton Benson.

Others expected to be named

Bills Affecting Carteret Clear Legislature

With slight amendment, the Senate passed this week a commercial fishing bill, HB 1085. The bill puts more teeth in seafood conservation laws, placing more responsibility on the seafood dealer for carrying out of fisheries regulations.

While it also relaxes law on taking of shrimp and oysters, the bill empowers the director of the department of conservation and development to close any areas deemed necessary in the interest of conservation. The bill is now law.

Another bill provides $60,000 a year for the next two years to fight mosquitoes on a long-range basis. The money will be used for draining marshes and diking. Heretofore, mosquito control funds have been used for spraying and purchase of spraying equipment.

Representative D. G. Bell, Carteret, terms the funds as "additional" mosquito control funds. He said, "We're lucky to get the money."

Also approved were funds for the state museum of natural history in Raleigh, and the Hampton Marine museum, Morehead City. A companion bill would establish an advisory commission for the two museums (the Hampton museum is operated as a part of the museum at Raleigh).

The commission will consist of nine persons, six who have a direct interest in the museums and three from the state at large. Another bill provides for a curator to work in the Raleigh museum and the museum at Morehead City.

Also passed this week was a bill authorizing a county law library and other courtroom improvements to be financed by raising court costs $1.

The legislature was scheduled to close at 11 a.m. yesterday, ending a 19-week session.

Heavy Rains Fall Here; High Winds Hit Other Areas

Hail and damaging winds predicted for Carteret this week failed to materialize. Less fortunate areas in eastern Carolina experienced cyclonic winds and drenching rains that caused heavy damage to crops and buildings.

The Atlantic Beach weather station recorded winds up to 30 miles per hour Wednesday night, and almost an inch of rain fell between Wednesday night and yesterday noon.

The highest temperature recorded this week was 85, on Tuesday. The high for Monday was 83 and Wednesday's high was 80. Lows ranged from 62 on Monday, to 72 on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Chairman Makes Plea for Funds

The Rev. Jack Mansfield, chairman of the county migrant-ministry committee, this week made an urgent plea for funds to carry on the program.

"The amount contributed this year has fallen far short of what is needed," Mr. Mansfield reports. A new program, free medical service to the migrants, has been instituted this summer.

Funds are needed to buy the medicine given workers who attend the clinic. Approximately 30 patients were seen by Dr. Herbert F. Webb, Sea Level, at the Kearney Merrill camp Wednesday night, off highway 101.

A two-room medical trailer is taken to the camp site. Doctors providing their services are Dr. Webb, Dr. S. W. Thompson, Dr. L. J. Norris, and Dr. John Gaaney.

The medical trailer visited the Neal Campen camp last night and will serve workers at the Ball farms in Harlowe tonight.

Persons and organizations are asked to send contributions for the migrant ministry to the Rev. Corbin Cooper, Morehead City.

JC's Get Ready To Sell Tickets

Morehead City Jaycees heard reports on projects when they met at the Blue Ribbon restaurant Monday night.

Football chairman John Edwards reported that tickets for the Morehead City high school games will be available soon and will be distributed among the Jaycees. He said the programs will be prepared later.

Jaycees Tommy Ballou and Joe Beam reported on the 12th district workshop conducted in Morehead City last week by district vice-president Bill Singleton. The workshop was also attended by Gordon Willis Jr., and Walter Willis.

Walter Willis informed the club that 67 ads had been sold for the Miss Carteret County pageant programs and that seven girls had entered. He said that a work detail would be at the track Tuesday night to prepare it for the pageant.

State director Russell Outlaw reminded the members that Monday was the first day of the national convention in Atlanta, Ga. He encouraged members to continue with the savings stamp project to boost the midget football program.

Guests of the club were Clyde V. Burr and his son, Virgil. They told the Jaycees about their trip to High Point June 9-10 and Virgil's participation in the teen-age rodeo.

They remarked that the rodeo was well organized and conducted and thanked the club for sponsoring their trip. They said they would be happy to work with the club in staging a rodeo on the local level.

Highway Fatality

The State Highway Patrol reports that a Marine was killed about 9 p.m. Wednesday in an auto accident on highway 70 between the Carteret-Craven line and Havelock.
