Yancey Collegiate Institute Opens August 21.

We are very anxious for you to be present at the opening exercise, Tuesday morning, August 21st, at ten o'clock. We are expecting Hon. J. W. Bailey, of Raleigh, along with others, to be with us; and we wish to greet them with as large attendance as possible.

I feel safe in saying that Y. C. I. has one of the strongest corps of teachers, for this year, that it has ever had. Of those who were with us last year, we have Prof. J. W. Huff, Miss Francis McMath, Miss Loretta Stout, matron of the girls home, and Prof. C. B. Loftis, who has charge of the boys home. Among the new teachers who come to us, we have Miss Shattie Taylor, of Forsyth, Ga. Miss Taylor will teach Spanish and French, having been recommended to us very highly as a teacher of these studies, having taught Spanish in Bessie Tift College.

In the preparatory department, along with Miss Stout, we have Miss Elizabeth Middleton, of Magnolia, N. C. and Miss Gladys Harmon, of Gaffney, S. C. Both these ladies are experienced teachers and come to us well recommended as being efficient in their line of work. Miss Harmon will have charge of the first, second and third grades; Miss Middleton the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

In the music department we have Miss Oudia Brannen, of Statesboro, Ga., as director, teaching piano and violin. Miss Brannen has had several years experience as a teacher of music, having been assistant teacher of piano and conservatory, and having taught in Statesboro for three years. She will have associated with her Miss Nell Brevard, of Biltmore, N. C. Miss Brevard will teach piano and voice. All those interested in voice lessons will do well to arrange to take from her.

With the co-operation of the students, teachers and parents, the coming session bids fair to be one of the best in the history of the school. We are very anxious to have the patrons of the school present on the opening day so that we may become acquainted. We want to know you and have you feel that you are welcome at all times.

R. M. LEE, President.

Three Days.

If you have weak eyes, bad vision, swimming of the head, spots before the eyes, red and inflamed eyes, or any other eye trouble, come to me.

I have had twenty-five years experience and I know my business. Have done work for people in different states in my office in the past three years.

Don't forget the children. If they have any eye trouble, the sooner it is corrected the better for them. The examination is free.

Remember the days for the school children will soon be here. Statistics show that twenty-five per cent of the school children have some form of eye trouble. I make a specialty of eye work for children. Remember you only have a few opportunities like this in a life time. Come the first day and avoid the rush.

A Trip to Mt. Mitchell.

We went over the Mt. Mitchell motor road to the top of Mitchell's Peak on the Fourth. There were two hundred along, mostly from the Normal Summer School in Asheville. There were said to be eight hundred on the mountain that day.

The motor road begins its steep ascent at Black Mountain, winding around steep heights and over deep valleys, the cars backing around curves walled upon a higher plane at each turn of the road. The scene is wonderful as you climb far over the forest covered peaks. In the valleys can be seen the little towns and villages in distance, little dots like toys in the plains below. We reached Camp Alice, the terminus of the road at eleven o'clock where we had lunch, then began the climb to the top. When we looked far above and saw the flag waving from the top of the peak, it seemed a distance, but found it quite a nice trail with substantial seats along the way, and we were soon at the top looking in speechless wonder over the scene. No pen can describe the brush portray. One has to see from this height the beauty and wonder of this section of North Carolina, pronounced by world travelers to be the most beautiful on the globe.

We looked from the observatory stationed on top of the peak near by and others extending to other states. Below us were the dark clouds through which we had come somewhat dampened, and as we stood by Prof. Mitchell's grave it seemed the clouds hung like a dark curtain at half mast, a fitting scene where sleeps alone one who gave much of his life and more in his death to North Carolina.

As we descended to the Camp we noticed more leisurely the surrounding forest—the dark balsam, spruce and many strange plants and flowers, the beautiful rhododendron and azaleas at the height were in their glory. The balsam groves were beautiful. Little cards hung from the trees announcing that the property of Uncle Sam. The scene descending was even more wonderful than going up as we rounded those curves among the Black mountains we could see far below the east, Old Fort, the Andromeda fountain and lighted up by setting sun, the Grandfather Table Rock, and numerous others.

Between the perpendicular walls of the Rainbow Gap could be seen the colored mist from which it takes its name and which is somewhat of a mystery as to father on is the Brown Mountain light not yet fully understood.

We came to Asheville at sunset and there was a feeling of thankfulness that we had passed over this wonderful scenic road safely, and for the ingenuity of man, making it possible to view the most beautiful handiwork of nature given to us by the hand of nature's God.

A CHOICE of Two THINGS

WHEN a person decides to save money, he has generally turned the matter over in his mind and made a choice between two things. For the matter of saving comes to that.

Do you choose to spend your money as it comes, gaining nothing to show for it—or to save part of it until it has grown large enough to buy something you really want?
