Letters TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:
 As a visitor in your area, I wish to acknowledge and thank the members of the Newdale Volunteer Fire Department and Yancey County Rescue Squad and the Spruce Pine Squad who joined the search for my son and nephew who were lost on the South Toe River Monday night, August 1.
 Their efforts were unceasing until the boys were found at 11:15 p.m. that night. Their kindness and consideration to us will never be forgotten by two cold, scared and hungry young boys, or their badly frightened mother and family.
 To all the men who became hoarse from calling "Cort" and "Jeff" for hours, we thank you and owe you more than words can say.
 Most Sincerely,
 Jeff Houston,
 Cort and Boots McCord

Dear Editor:
 As so many parents of teen-age girls know, there are problems which we are unable to cope with.
 About a year ago, the Raleigh News and Observer carried a full page on "Girls Haven". This home, located in Asheboro, N.C. was represented as a Christian home for girls. They would find love, firm discipline, and hopefully be prepared for a wholesome life.
 Being parents of a very rebellious daughter of twelve and unable to cope, we called and made an appointment to visit Girls Haven. We went to Asheboro, but were very disappointed and believed our daughter should not be placed there.
 About three months later, we were invited to visit Girls Haven again. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones were the new house parents. We took our daughter and were very impressed with the new appearance of the home; to say nothing of the love and warmth, and the real feeling this couple possesses for the well-being of children. So, we admitted our daughter a week later.
 Our daughter stayed three months and was really showing a marked improvement. The Jones were asked to resign; at which time we brought our daughter home.
 Readers: What I don't understand "What's happened to Girls Haven? The last house parents stayed only two months. The remaining four youngsters left; two of them went to the Joneses who are keeping them at their own expense.
 To you people who are interested, I would like you to know this Home is state licensed. It is not supported by the state. You members of various clubs such as Kiwanis, Jaycees, Business and Professional clubs do support it. But what you may not know is there is not one youngster there (letter dated Aug. 1, 1977). Please! There are so many young girls who need help. Who do we ask to investigate?
 A very concerned Mother and Father project costs in the coming years.

 The Asheville meeting is one of 14 scheduled throughout the state to provide maximum possible citizen participation in the planning process to improve the North Carolina Highway System.
 "We encourage and actively seek public participation in these meetings," said Thomas W. Bradshaw, Jr., Secretary of Transportation. "I have instructed my staff to record all public comment at these meetings so that the suggestions and concerns voiced by the citizenry can be reported to the full Transportation Board for its consideration."
