Walter Carringer Receives WCC Alumni Award

Walter Carringer of Murphy received Western Carolina College's Alumni Distinguished Service Award Saturday night, June 2, at the annual senior-alumni banquet for his accomplishments in vocal music.

Carringer attended Western Carolina College for one year in 1946 after which he transferred to Columbia University to earn a bachelor of science degree in music. Prior to enrolling at WCC, he had spent two and one-half years in the U. S. Army, during which time he appeared in numerous USO shows and bond selling tours. While a student at WCC he won the Federated Music Clubs student award in statewide competition.

While a senior at Columbia, Carringer was engaged by Robert Shaw, director of the famed Robert Shaw Chorale, and performed with that group as tenor soloist for three and one-half years. Highlights of that experience included concerts in Town Hall and Carnegie Hall in New York City; recordings for RCA Victor; radio and television appearances; and six nationwide tours, one of which covered a performance in the WCC lyceum series. He sang here again with the Brevard Symphony two years ago, and has toured with the North Carolina Little Symphony.

In 1953 Carringer left the Chorale to devote full time to solo concert work. He made his European debut in a London recital in 1956, and in 1959 was one of 12 young artists from over the world selected to sing under the auspices of the New Orleans Opera Company. He has received complimentary reviews in many in many of the nation's leading newspapers including The New York Times, and has an outstanding record of premier performances of oratorios.

For the past two years he has served as music master at the Hathcock School in Greenwich, Conn., in addition to continuing his solo concert career. A professional commitment prevented his being present to receive the WCC award; however, his mother, Mrs. Ruth Carringer of Murphy accepted for him. Recipients of the Alumni Distinguished Service Award are chosen by a special committee after nominations have been made by any member of the Alumni Association who wishes to do so.
