What's Best Headline You Can Imagine?

One of the favorite exercises in journalism school is a discussion of what would be the greatest news story imaginable. Usually the decision comes down to one of these two: (1) The second coming of Christ; or (2) Irrefutable proof of life hereafter.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce put its own angle to the idea and asked newspaper editors throughout Georgia: What headline would you most like to see across the front page of your newspaper?

Quite a number of the editors responded in exactly the terms you would expect from civic and business leaders in this area. The LaGrange Daily News: "New Industries Flock to LaGrange."

The Valley Times - News: "West Point Dam Completed." Savannah Morning News: "U. S. Invades Cuba." Macon Telegraph: "Stay-Young Pill Made." Augusta Chronicle: "Communism Toppled." Atlanta Constitution: "Love Overcomes Force; Neighbor Suppresses Self."

Moultrie Observer: "Soviet Russia Abandons Communism." Columbus Enquirer: "Cure For Cancer Found by Doctor." Atlanta Journal: "Governor Dedicates Atlanta State Docks." Gainesville Daily Times: "U. S. Navy Academy Moves to Lake Lanier."

Waycross Journal - Herald: "New Industry in Waycross Employs 5,000." Ranking high as the most unlikely is this one by the Savannah Evening Press: "United States Government Repeals Taxes Levied on Citizens' Income."

On the reverse side, the worst headline conceivable, the editor of The Macon News submitted the one that will win the hearts of most of us: "Automation Replaces Newspaper Editors."

Wonder what the readers of The Scout would consider the best headline they could see?

Somebody can win $1.00 for the best one. All insulting remarks, like "Drop Dead," will be studiously overlooked. Submit yours, by mail or telephone, to the editor of The Cherokee Scout.

Mr. W. R. Martin of Suit, N. C., writes, "The best headline that I would want to see would be to replace greed, selfishness and dishonesty with love, faith and morality."
