The K-12

Connection --

It's our goal.

"Education is the key ingredient in the success of our children," says Ted R. Rogers Jr., IBM network analyst, volunteer tutor/mentor and semi-professional football player. Whether it's helping a local student at Brogden Middle School achieve educational goals, playing football or just being a friend, Ted's energy is limitless when it comes to helping young people.

Ted joins hundreds of other Triangle Area IBMers who volunteer in local schools. Encouraging and supporting these volunteer efforts is only one example of how IBM supports K-12 education in our local communities.

We realize that improving education is fundamental to maintaining competitiveness. Whether it's School Business Partnerships, equipment grants, model schools or parenting seminars, IBM in the Triangle Area is committed to making a difference. With volunteers like Ted, we know we're making our K-12 connection.

IBMer Ted Rogers shares his love of school and football with his student friend Corey Wilkerson.
