Briefs

Arts Council announces grant deadline
The Arts Council of Winston-Salem and Forsyth County is accepting applications for its matching grant program Project Assistance. Nonprofit cultural organizations, who provide high quality programs and services to Forsyth County residents, are eligible for up to $4,000 in matching grant funds. The deadline is August 1, 1994. To receive an application, call Jeff Swaim at (910)-722-2585.

Duke Endowment funds physician assistants
The Charlotte-based Duke Endowment has awarded a grant of $64,500 to Southeastern Regional Medical Center in Lumberton for a training program for physician assistants. The program will recruit, educate and place physician assistants into primary care practices in Robeson and surrounding counties. Students will study sciences for a year at Duke and then return to a clinical site in or near Robeson county. The endowment expects to spend $464,550 over three years on the program.

Microsoft chairman will give away billions
Bill Gates, chairman of computer giant Microsoft, says he will give away 95 percent of his nearly $8 billion fortune when he reaches his 50s. Gates, now 38, says he will give the money to "charitable things, scientific things" but warns, "Don't tell people to write me letters. It's a lot to give away and it's going to take time."

September bike tour to aid multiple sclerosis victims
The Eastern North Carolina Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society has announced its 6th annual bike tour. Bikers - both professional and casual - are invited to participate in the two day, 150-mile event that begins September 24 in Greenville and loops around Camp Sea Gull on Minnesott Beach. To volunteer or cycle, call: (919) 781-0676.

Doris Duke's will questioned by adviser
A former adviser to late tobacco heiress Doris Duke has filed objections to her $1.2 billion will, claiming she may have been murdered. Irwin Bloom was removed as co-executor and trustee of Duke's will in 1992 for unspecified reasons. Duke left $5 million to her butler, Bernard Lafferty and named him trustee of a foundation that will control her estate. Bloom's claims that Duke may have been poisoned were rejected by lawyers for Lafferty.

K Mart to raise funds for special Olympics
K Mart is raising money for North Carolina Special Olympics through a statewide raffle in its stores. Norwegian Cruise Lines has donated to K Mart tickets for a seven-day cruise to Bermuda to raffle. Last year, K Mart raised nearly $45,000 for Special Olympics games for people with mental retardation. For information, call (800)-843-6276.

Golf classic slated at Cary country club
The Autism Foundation of North Carolina will host its third annual charity Golf Classic on Aug. 22 at the Prestonwood Country Club in Cary. Rufus L. Edmisten, Secretary of State; James Goodnight, president of SAS Institute; and Sen. Kenneth C. Royall Jr., senior budget advisor to the governor, are honorary chairmen. Last year's tournament raised more than $18,000 for children and adults with autism.
