HAUPTMANN SHIVERS AS KILLER DIES

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 31—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, wife of the convicted murderer of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., spent 45 minutes with her husband late today and came out of the State prison death house to report that Hauptmann was "feeling good and is not at all downhearted."

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 31—The iron nerves of Bruno Richard Hauptmann are cracking at last, authorities at the New Jersey State prison believed today.

After watching Hauptmann's reaction to the execution of one of his fellow death house inmates, Romaine Johnson, thirty-four-year-old Negro, last night, the prison officials declared it was not unreasonable to hope the stolid Bronx carpenter would make a complete confession of his part in the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder before his scheduled walk to the death chair himself the week of January 13.

Has Case of "Nerves"

The first word that Hauptmann's amazing fortune had begun to desert him came from Col. Mark O. Kimberling, warden of the prison. He said: "Hauptmann displayed a bad case of 'nerves' while the death warrant was being read to Johnson, and for an hour before and more than two hours after Johnson's execution he lay huddled beneath the blanket of his cot."

Food Untouched

All day yesterday Hauptmann left his food standing untouched. Only when two of his attorneys, C. Lloyd Fisher and Frederick Pope visited him and told him they believed his chances before the Court of Pardons were "better than ever" did the prisoner appear to become cheered.

HIT-RUN DRIVER BAN FOR TAG

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 31—Detective John Costello's psychological deduction, plus the fact that it's the time of year to get a new automobile license plates, trapped a hit-run driver. Costello went to license headquarters and arrested the first man to apply for a tag for an automobile of the make that ran down Andrew Roberts. The applicant, Harry Moranty, confessed.

PRINCE HITS BOMBING OF RED CROSS

Swedish Nobleman Protests Italian Air Raid in Which 32 Persons Were Killed.

Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 31—Prince Charles of Sweden telegraphed today to the international Red Cross organization at Geneva, demanding the most complete investigation possible of the reported bombing of a Swedish Red Cross hospital in Ethiopia. The Prince who is sponsor of the hospital, asked particularly why the Red Cross sign on its roof was not respected.

Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 31—Special police guards were placed around the Italian Legation tonight as Swedish indignation over the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross hospital in Ethiopia turned into bitter resentment against Italians here.

Addis Ababa, Dec. 31—Fighting which may develop into the major battle of the Italo-Ethiopian war broke out on the northern front today.

Three great Ethiopian armies numbering hundreds of thousands of men were converging upon Makale, according to unofficial reports received here.

Heavy Casualties

Twenty-three Italian officers were reported among the slain. Casualties were reported extremely heavy on both sides.

On the southern front Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, announced in a wireless message that nine Swedes, the full personnel of a Swedish Red Cross ambulance unit, and 23 Ethiopians were killed by Italian airplanes in a raid 20 miles northwest of Dolo.

In the northern fighting Ras Moulougetta, War Minister, and Ras Kassa and Ras Seyoum, veteran northern front commanders, were reported marching upon Makale, southernmost point of the wedge-shaped area captured by the Italians many weeks ago.

Communications Cut

The concerted drive of the massed forces followed several recent battles in which comparatively small Ethiopian detachments penetrated beyond the Italian advance lines, in some instances cutting off the Italian communications.
