

SKIING DRAWS THOUSANDS OF WINTER SPORTS ENTHUSIASTS

From December to July, skiers find sport on the steep slopes that often completely cover Paradise Winter Lodge in Ranier National Park, Washington. This scene was taken only a mile from the all-winter automobile highway which is kept open for devotees of winter sports who flock to the region.

INVENTORY SHOWS PROGRESS MADE

Inventories Should be Taken First of Year. Will Reveal Many Facts.

An annual inventory of farm property and equipment, together with a statement of liabilities, will show the farmer where he stands, said Dr. G. W. Forster, agricultural economist at State College.

The difference between the assets and liabilities represents the equity or net worth of the farmstead, he explained.

Inventories taken the first of each year will also show the progress made from year to year as the farm is built up and improved, and will show the depreciation of buildings and equipment, Dr. Forster added.

Often a farmer neglects his property and equipment because he does not realize how fast they are deteriorating.

Annual inventories will help focus his attention on the depreciation resulting from neglect, Dr. Forster pointed out, and will thus serve as a stimulus to taking better care of his property.

In case of losses by fire, a carefully prepared inventory will reveal the value of the assets destroyed. Such a record will be an aid in obtaining the proper adjustment from the insurance company, when the losses are covered by insurance.

An inventory already prepared is an aid in securing credit, Dr. Forster went on, as most bankers and other credit agencies require a statement of assets and liabilities and of the net gain or loss per year.

Moreover, he stated, an inventory is the starting point or basis for keeping farm accounts, and all good farmers keep accounts of their business.

Summary sheets of results on farm management demonstrations in Transylvania County show a great improvement in pasture land this year due to the use of triple superphosphate.

J. M. Jenkins, Stanfield, Cabarrus County, has recently completed a 20'x70' laying house, modern in every respect and including lights and running water, for $319.95.

HOG SCHOOL TO OPEN JANUARY 7

To Be Conducted at Palace Theatre
January 7th, at 10:00 A. M.

Mr. H. W. Taylor, Extension Swine Specialist, of State College, Raleigh, will conduct a school on hog management at the Palace Theatre, Thursday, January 7, 1937, at 10:00 a. m.

It is to the interest of every farmer in Person County who grows hogs, either for the market or for his own use, to be present at that meeting, as two moving pictures will be shown, one picture showing the proper management and feeding of hogs and the other showing disease and worm control.

Mr. Taylor will also conduct a discussion regarding the growing of hogs in this section. As the discussion and showing of the pictures will last about two hours and a half, we are beginning the meeting promptly at 10:00 a. m. Every farmer, whether owner or tenant, should be present at this meeting. Good hogs are important to each and every family.

It is estimated that under our present method of growing hogs that worms alone slow up the growth of hogs as much as 20%. In other words, if you keep your hogs under average conditions, worms get one out of every five bushels of corn you feed to your hogs. Therefore, it will be money in your pocket to be present and take part in this discussion and secure from Mr. Taylor a satisfactory method of controlling worms in your herd. Remember the time and place: Palace theatre, Roxboro, 10:00 a. m. Jan. 7, 1937.

Happy New Year! Welcome 1937

THANK YOU, FRIENDS for making 1936 a most successful year.

BUT WHY? Because we gave our Customers values and a square deal. They in turn sent their friends to us, etc., etc.

You can't fool the public. If you try, they know it. When a business man tells you that his business is losing money for him, he's telling you that his customers found better values and service elsewhere.

For your sake, for our sake, let us do business together in 1937.
