Mrs. T. R. Kanipe will leave Old Fort on Monday for Greenville where she will attend the first session of summer school at Eastern Carolina Teacher's college.

Child's Vacation Breakfast Important

During summer vacation children are apt to dash out to play without taking time to eat a nourishing breakfast. Yet, an active youngster burns up more energy in hard play during the morning than he uses in a whole day at school!

As many a conscientious parent knows, getting Johnny to take time for a good breakfast can be a real problem. With the fun of outside play calling to him from the moment he gets up, he begrudges every minute he spends at the table.

This situation calls for real strategy. Be understanding about his urge to show the boys his new baseball mitt, but keep your eye on that breakfast! Do everything you can to see that he comes to the table with an eager appetite. This breakfast menu is a real appetite-promoter that not only Johnny but the whole family will enjoy.

Vacation Breakfast

- Orange Juice
- Buttered Rice
- Pancakes
- Fresh Rhubarb Sauce
- Bacon Curls
- Milk

There is something about pancakes — tender, golden-brown and fragrant that makes most youngsters glad to spend the time polishing off that breakfast plate. Nutritionists tell us that light, fluffy pancakes are easy to digest and give children protein, calcium and phosphorus.

And here's another suggestion—a pancake ready-mix makes it easy to fix pancakes for your child's vacation breakfast. Using a good ready-mix also insures light and fluffy pancakes.

Quick Pancakes

- 2 cups ready-mix for pancakes
- 2 1/4 cups milk

Just add milk to unsifted mix at once and stir lightly. Somewhat lumpy batter makes light, fluffy pancakes. Pour 1/4 cup of batter for each pancake onto a hot, lightly greased griddle. Bake to a golden brown, turning only once. Makes 14 to 16 pancakes.

For Extra Rich Pancakes, add 2 tablespoons melted fat or oil and one beaten egg to pancake batter.

Harkins Will Address Masons

Thomas R. Harkins, attorney of Asheville, will be the principal speaker at a ground breaking ceremony which will be held by the Masonic lodge of Old Fort on Sunday at two thirty o'clock. The meeting will be held on the site of the new temple to be erected in the immediate future. Music for the occasion will be furnished by choirs from the different churches of the town.

District deputy grand master, William J. Powers of Rutherfordton, is expected to be present for the ceremony.

Meat production under Federal inspection for the week ending May 10 totaled 301 million pounds, according to the USDA.

"WHO WAS JESUS?"

A PLAIN STATEMENT BY JESUS, OUR SAVIOR HIMSELF, THAT HE WAS WITH THE FATHER IN GLORY AND SHARED IN THE GLORY OF HEAVEN BEFORE THE WORLD EXISTED. JOHN 17:5.

ANOTHER SCRIPTURE MAKES THIS FACT CLEARER — JOHN THE FIRST CHAPTER AND THE TENTH VERSE. HERE IT IS PLAINLY DECLARED THAT THE WORLD ITSELF WAS MADE BY CHRIST. HE WAS THE ACTIVE AGENT IN CREATION. THIS IS UPHELD BY THE FIRST EIGHT VERSES OF THE FIRST CHAPTER OF HEBREWS AND BY THE SIXTEENTH VERSE OF THE FIRST CHAPTER OF COLOSSIANS.

CHRIST WAS THE ACTIVE AGENT IN THE CREATION OF THE WORLD AND MAN. HE EXISTED WITH THE FATHER IN GLORY BEFORE THE WORLD WAS AND BEFORE MAN WAS CREATED. THEREFORE, HE IS MORE THAN MAN. HE WAS BEFORE THIS WORLD EXISTED.

Bird Nests

Nests are really bird cradles. Do all birds have nests? Oh, no! Birds that rarely perch in trees or those that never do so have no nest, or almost none.

Many sea-birds, terns, sandpipers, gulls, and others lay their eggs on the ground. Some sandpipers make a grass-lined depression hole in the ground, our sandpiper, a spotted one, makes hers of grasses, concealed under weeds, near the water. Look for them when you go to the seashore this summer. You may find three to five buff, blackish-brown spotted eggs. Curlews, plovers, and other seashore birds, the rails, grouse, quails, and others, likewise lay their eggs on the ground. Their young are called "dependents". Herons make frail platforms in bushes in swamps or near water, cranes, a bulky mass of weeds on the ground in marshes; rails, in grasses on the ground in freshwater marshes; loons, in decaying rushes, floating on the water; and puffins, on ground or rocks. These and many others you'll see when you drive to and through Florida. The swimmers (ducks, geese, and others) do little better. The duck does make a substantial bed for the eggs: while the eider and other Arctic ducks use quantities of molted (shed) down and feathers, covering the eggs well when left for a time, to hide them and to keep them warm. If you have ever slept under an eider-down "comfort" in very cold weather, you know how snug and warm the eider duck's eggs are kept—"all snug in their beds." Skimmers make hollows in the sand on the beach.

Nests in trees or other high places must protect the eggs from rolling off and smashing, and the nestlings from falling. Sometimes there are almost flat nests—a mere rude platform of twigs resting on branches of trees or bushes, hollowed a little at the center.

Why do sparrows and many other species of birds make real nests on the ground or just above the ground or in trees and bushes, while the birds we have mentioned do not? Their young belong to the "dependent" group of birds. Every kind of bird has a style of its own in nest building—"after its kind," as in, and since, "Creation." When you once learn these, you never confuse them. In most species they are marked by some special peculiarity, — the crest fly-catcher uses bits of snake skin in the foundation, leaving a little piece hanging outside, possibly to frighten squirrels, cats and other enemies. The nests of straw, weeds and grass, and holes of dead limbs or in desert woodpecker holes in trees. In the you will find four or five buff white eggs, streaked or blotched with brown.
