EARLY ON ROSSER. THE FORMER REPLY TO THE LAST CHANGE OF THE 'LATTER.' A Sharp Correspondence in Which Rosser Considers Rosser Demoted.

LYNCHBURG, Va., July 6. -Following is the substance of Gen. Jubal A. Early's reply to Gen. Rosser, published in the "Virginia Age."

"I had hoped that I would not again be called on to notice anything from Gen. T. M. Rosser, but as you have published in your paper of the 3d, a telegram from New York, in which he is reported to have said to a United Press reporter in reference to myself:

"I saw him studying a map of the battle field and he said to me, 'I could not find a certain road he called an aid road had informed him that he had just rode through it, a d-d liar, and as a failure on my part to deny the truth of said statement, I have just published right under my nose, might be construed into a tacit acknowledgment of its accuracy. I feel constrained to pronounce it an atrocious falsehood without foundation, in fact I never saw a map of said battle field during the war, except, perhaps, first Manassas, these were maps of some of the sections of country in which we operated, which I sometimes consulted, but I never saw a map of the battle field in Maryland or Pennsylvania. My relations with all who served on my staff as aides, whether regular or volunteer, were of the most cordial and friendly character and there is no person in the army who would not indignantly repel the statement made by Rosser as a vile slander. Really the only possible palliation for Rosser's recent utterances in regard to myself is to be found in the fact that he has been so grossly abused and rebuffed that he would be unworthy of notice, but for the currency given them by the newspapers."

The First Sale in Georgia. ALBANY, Ga., July 5. -Hon. Primus W. Jones, of Baker county, the republican first-class man, operated the four of spades, and he would pack the first bale of cotton of the season of 1887.

VARIOUS PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS. What the Newspapers Say of People Whom the World Knows.

JOHN MILLER has sold his log cabin in Washington for $5,000, and his new owner has rented it to Mr. A. A. assistant secretary of state.

MR. CLEVELAND'S shoes worn in the Adirondacks were a pair of No. 16, for which she paid $4. At least such is the exceedingly important statement made by a Washington shoe dealer.

MR. ALMA-TALEMMA has designed a piano of ebony and oak for a citizen of New York, with decorative details of cedar, mahogany and ivory, and with a long, low keyboard. The cost is said to be $33,000.

ANNA DICKINSON is slowly recovering from a dangerous illness caused by over exertion and worry. She had a narrow escape from death. A long rest and change of scene are needed to restore her to her old-time vigor and energy.

THE CASE will soon take a journey into the Don Cossack country, during which he will present the exponents to the Cossacks. It is a ride of over 1,500 miles, and a journey surrounded with considerable danger, notwithstanding the fact that the route is well guarded by the Russian police.

FR. FRED GRANT, the eldest son of the late Mrs. Grant, is said to be deriving a man very much like his father, and in proof of this, it is told that he is never seen without a cigar in his mouth. He is a small looking young man, with blue eyes, no brightness, his features no characteristics, his complexion no color, and he seems to be simply fat and dull.
