Students Hear, See Basics Of Economics

Twenty-seven students representing all three county high schools studied economic decision-making first-hand March 25-26 through the 4-H Economics in Action Program.

Billy Privette, associate extension 4-H agent with the Brunswick County Extension Service, said the students toured the Carolina Power & Light Co. Brunswick Nuclear Plant at Southport and the Brunswick Electric Membership Corp. facility in Shallotte.

During an overnight stay at the North Carolina Baptist Assembly on Oak Island, the students participated in small group discussions with Margaret Rudd, Tommy Harrelson and Buddy Rudd concerning their businesses.

Bob Ury, extension economics specialist from N.C. State University, introduced the students to economic concepts and conducted a discussion of how a business is organized and operated.

Tom Corbitt, director of the CP&L Brunswick Visitors Center, and Ronald Hayes, director of member services for BEMC, applied these discussions to their respective firms.

Participants in the program were as follows: Lisa Walls; Amy Coggins; Melissa Smith; Andrew Stirling; Gail Rabon; Cynthia Ott; Patricia Hill; Leslie Hux; Carl Fallor; Starlette Vaught; Jimmy

Priorities

BY DICKY POWELL
 BRUNSWICK FUNERAL SERVICE

DICKY POWELL

There is no getting around it. These times demand thoughtful consideration of priorities, often bringing the supremely human urge to honor the dead with reverence in conflict with the pressing needs of the living. We are very aware of this problem and have tailored our services to achieve balance in continuing to provide a funeral service that meets the expectations of the living without inflicting undue hardship on survivors.

At Brunswick Funeral Service a dedicated and understanding staff have proven again and again that a truly dignified funeral service can be solemnized without pretentiousness and, indeed, is all the more memorable for its absence.
