

Health Board Seeks Funding Increase For Animal Control

BY TERRY POPE

Expanding and upgrading the Brunswick County Health Department's animal control services may cost the county an extra $60,000, or a 100 percent increase over the amount appropriated by commissioners for animal control last year.

A proposed budget adopted by the Brunswick County Board of Health Monday night reflects the increase in county funding for the animal control budget while other areas show only moderate increases.

If approved by commissioners in June, the animal control budget would increase from around $60,000 appropriated for the 1984-85 fiscal year to a requested $122,254 for 1985-86. The funds are needed to place an additional animal control officer on the staff and to expand the animal control facilities to include 12 additional dog holding pens, said Brunswick County Health Director Thomas Blum.

"The budget increase reflects our attempt to show commissioners a total package we think will bring the animal control program to a point where we can do things other than just answer calls," Blum said.

Blum said the increased budget would allow the department to expand its animal control services into the neighborhoods to familiarize the communities with "the positive or prevention side to the animal control program."

In approving the increased budget request Monday night, the health board "generally recognizes that the animal control shelter is just too small to deal with the number of animals" the shelter receives each year, Blum said.

After some discussion Monday night, the board decided to ask commissioners for the shelter improvements and additional animal control staff member in the same fiscal year, creating the 100 percent increase in the animal control budget. Other budget requests call for a 13 percent increase in county funding for the environmental health budget and a nine percent increase in county funding for the health administration budget.

The health board will seek $202,453 from the county for environmental health services that reflect three major changes within the department: 1) the addition of a new clerk to help deal with the paperwork of the sewage program; 2) the addition of a computer monitor to store sewage information on the county's terminal; and 3) the funds to allow environmental health to begin an infant car seat loan program.

The health department expects to receive $283,000 for its state-funded programs for the 1985-86 fiscal year. Those state grants and funds would cover the maternal, child health, family planning, Women Infants and Children (WIC), adult health, hypertension and tuberculosis control programs.

An estimated $415,000 in county funds is needed for the health administration budget next year, Blum said. The nine percent increase reflects the addition of a clerk for the adult health program and other staff members in children's health and general clinic programs.

The board also agreed Monday to write a letter to area legislators endorsing proposed bills before the N.C. General Assembly that would boost the county's dental health and school health programs.

The bills, part of the state's ten-year dental improvement plan, would provide additional funds for the program so each county could receive its own school health educator. Brunswick County is one of six counties in the state that does not have its own health educator.

However, the county does participate in the dental health program in several schools through use of a dental hygienist from Wilmington.

In other business Monday, the health board approved a referral contract with Sencland Community Action Inc. of Whiteville. The health department will examine Sencland youths that participate in the agency's summer youth employment program.

The board also rescheduled its May meeting from May 13 to May 22.

Point VFD Seeks New Firefighters

More firefighters, both men and women, are needed in the Shallotte Point fire district, according to Joyce Land, spokesman for the Shallotte Point Volunteer Fire Department.

"Sufficient equipment is presently available," she said, "but volunteers are badly needed to staff the department at levels acceptable to the insurance rating agencies."

Mrs. Land said younger adults—men and women age 18 and older—are "urgently needed."

Insurance rates for residents of the fire district are determined by the available fire-fighting equipment and personnel. Shallotte Point VFD covers nearly 12,000 acres in southeastern Brunswick County, serving in excess of 2,500 people, she said.

Formal firefighting classes will begin in the near future through Brunswick Technical College.

Persons interested in joining the department can attend any regular meeting of the department on Mondays at 7:30 p.m., she said, or they may call 754-4667, 754-6985 or 754-6080 for more information.

Those who support the fire department, but are not available to fight fires, are encouraged to make tax-deductible contributions to it.

What Type Are You?

Derrick Smith, 12, didn't flinch a bit when Lab Assistant Debbie Sawyer drew a blood sample for typing Saturday at the Brunswick County Health Department's Health Fair 85. Derrick found out he had O-positive blood, just one of the educational activities offered at the fair. Visitors also won "healthy life" kits if wearing seatbelts on arrival at the fair.
