This Was A Holiday?

Not everybody took the weekend off to celebrate Memorial Day. While others toasted at the beach, Charles Testerman was spotted near Hickman's Crossroads at midday Saturday under a heavy helmet, sandblasting this barge. It's a side job for him, on other days Testerman runs a store at Thomasboro.

Resource Students To Visit Their Pen Pals

What started out as a simple letter writing assignment for one Shallotte Middle School fourth-grade class has blossomed into long distance relationships for each of the students.

Ms. Bennett is a former resource teacher from Union Primary School and was Ms. Merritt's friend while she lived in Brunswick County. The friendship continued after Ms. Bennett moved, enabling them to organize a project involving the two classes.

The students wrote each other for months. With their letters they would send handmade cards and self portraits. In the last batch of letters, the Shallotte Middle group received a large wall mural that Ms. Bennett and her class had made.

The mural was a collage of the pen pals' faces. Ms. Bennett had drawn each student while the students colored in their own faces and added messages for their pen pals.

"Trying to think of a comparable project to send with their next batch of letters, the students came up with the idea of a field trip," Ms. Merritt stated.

Principal Mark Owens approved the field trip, saying it would be an exciting, educational experience.
