

Still Time To Register For Transfer Courses At Brunswick Tech

Students may register through 8 p.m. Thursday, July 11, for courses in General Education Program at Brunswick Technical College, according to Les Turner, director.

Students who plan for a four-year college degree should take a close look at the General Education Program, he said. According to Turner, most students who earn four-year degrees spend the first two years of college in general studies. These courses, such as math, English, literature, fine arts, science and history, are available in the General Education Program at Brunswick Tech. Students attending other colleges but home for the summer may also enroll, he said.

The General Education Program is designed to encourage students who otherwise would not be attending college to pursue a degree while living at home. They also have an opportunity to take advantage of the low tuition charged by technical colleges.

Brunswick Technical College has transfer agreements with over 25 senior institutions at which BTC students are guaranteed the transferability of academic credits earned in the General Education Program. This means that the General Education graduates can transfer to various four-year colleges and universities with the first two years of college studies behind them.

For a tuition cost of $306 students can complete their associate degree in General Education. This is just a few dollars more for two years of study than tuition for one semester at most four-year colleges and universities. "This is the most economical way to get two years of quality liberal arts education," said Turner. Some students transfer to other colleges before they complete enough credits to earn the associate degree at Brunswick Tech. "They originally enrolled because they wanted a college education, but were not sure of a major. These students transfer soon after making this decision," Turner said. He indicated that many students are capable of college work but need time to mature and think about career choices. Some decide against a university degree and change to another BTC program.

BTC Late Registration Through July 11

Registration for summer quarter classes at Brunswick Technical College will continue through 8 p.m., July 11. The office of student affairs and the bookstore will remain open each evening Monday through Thursday during the late registration period, according to public information officer, Connie Powell.

"Many students are taking advantage of the summer session while enjoying longer weekends. There are no Friday classes during the summer quarter," said Powell. Several short courses are being offered during the quarter. These courses are just a little over a month in length.
