

Nurse McDaniel Wins Humanitarian Award

Joanne McDaniel of Sunset Beach, a nurse at Grand Strand General Hospital in Myrtle Beach, S.C., was presented the 1985 Frist Humanitarian Award in a ceremony Oct. 10.

She received a check for $250, a lucite award and a pin. Her name will be engraved on a wall plaque located by the administrator's office.

McDaniel, daughter of Andrew and Elfriede Galloway of Sunset Beach, has worked in the Grand Strand General Hospital emergency room for 3½ years. She was also the hospital's nominee for the 1985 Nurse of the Year.

McDaniel, the mother of three and a member of Camp Methodist Church in Shallotte, works part-time at Brunswick Hospital in Supply.

The Frist Award Program was initiated in 1972 as a living tribute to Dr. Thomas F. Frist Sr., one of the three founders and first president of Hospital Corporation of America. Frist award winners are recognized for their contribution to patient welfare, co-worker morale and betterment of the community.

UCB Contributions Earn Governor's Award

United Carolina Bank has received the Governor's Award for Outstanding Contributions to Mathematics and Science Education.

Gov. James G. Martin presented the award to UCB's Chief Administrative Officer J.W. Adams, Jr. at a reception and recognition luncheon held in Greensboro recently, where it was noted that UCB's contributions to area schools benefit not only the students and faculty of the schools but all citizens of the cities, towns, and communities in which those schools are located.

ADMIRING the Governor's Award are, from left, J. W. Adams Jr., UCB's chief administrative officer, and E. Rhone Sasser, UCB president and former resident of Shallotte.

UCB was one of 16 North Carolina businesses winning the award for outstanding contributions. The contributions for which UCB was recognized include substantial financial donations to various schools throughout North Carolina for construction and renovation projects, computer and equipment purchases, band and athletic expenses, and other projects toward the development for math, science, and education in general.

UCB was also recognized for contributions of human resources including sponsoring company tours for students and teachers, offering professional expertise on curriculum development, providing resource speakers, serving on various educational committees, and allowing employees the time to get involved in their local schools.

The award is on display in the branch level of UCB's corporation building in Whiteville.

United Carolina Bank operates 99 offices in 56 North Carolina locations, including nine in Brunswick County, and has assets in excess of $1.4 billion.
