

TWO STYLISH SISTERS pose on Ocean Isle Beach before hitting the water. They are Kristen McLeod, left, and Stefanie McLeod, of Sumter Duck, Va., both decked out in ruffles and smiles.

CAROL SPEITH of Columbus, Ohio is trim in a mint green one-piece swimsuit with contrasting stripes. An eyeshade protects against the glaring sun.

SWIMWEAR OF ALL KINDS is displayed by this Greensboro family and their Shallotte hostess, Matt McGee says his sky blue shorts, rainbow-trimmed, are exactly what the surfers wear; his mother and sister,

THESE VACATIONERS were more interested in a ball game than the beach fashion scene, but Craig Powell, left, of Chester, S.C., in his wild print shorts, and Scott Matson of Atlanta in a tamer version, were standouts on Sunset Beach.

GUYS ARE FASHION CONSCIOUS, too. Robert Glen Helms, of Mooresville, clutching the string of a high-flying kite, looks cool in two-tone swim trunks, while his friend, Lonnie Christenburg of Lucia, sports trunks a little on the wild side in colorful leaf print.
