Local Beach Projects Seek Senate Approval

BY DOUG RUTTER

Funding for a countywide beach erosion study and the annual dredging of Lockwood Folly River Inlet have been approved by the U.S. House of Representatives and await action by the U.S. Senate.

Last month the House approved $901,000 for the two projects as part of the Energy and Water Development Appropriation Bill for fiscal year 1988.

The yearly dredging of Lockwood Folly River Inlet is budgeted at a cost of $601,000 by the House, while $300,000 is budgeted for the erosion study.

According to Keith Pitts, legislative director for 7th District Congressman Charlie Rose, "Everything is still up in the air."

Pitts said it may be November before the Senate addresses the bill because they have yet to study any of 14 appropriation bills on the floor this session.

"It's hard to say when they will act on it," he continued. "We've asked them to strongly support what we've got."

The countywide beach erosion study will investigate damage done during storms earlier this year, said Pitts. The funds will also provide hurricane protection and flood control.

"It's really hard to get federal funding for hurricane protection," he said, "and we hope that by getting our foot in the door, we'll be able to move forward with it a little bit more."

Pitts said the House approved much of what Congressman Rose proposed for the area, including a $5.8 million dredging of Wilmington Harbor.

"We really got the most we were able to get," he said.

Pitts added, "There were a few projects we dropped because we found out they could be handled through the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Wilmington. But everyone fared quite well."

Other local projects which are part of the Energy and Water Development Appropriation Bill for 1988 include dredging and flood control construction at Carolina Beach ($1.4 million) and dredging and an erosion study along the Cape Fear River ($908,000).

Revival Continues In Bolivia

BY BARBARA T. HEWETT

St. James Missionary Baptist Church of Bolivia began a week of revival Oct. 12, with pastor Ronnie McCrae Jr. in charge of the services at 7:30 p.m. each day.

The meetings are inspirational and the members are asking you to come out expecting a blessing.

To Install Pastor

St. James Missionary Baptist will also hold an installation service for its pastor, Rev. Ronnie McCrae Jr., on Sunday, Oct. 18, at 5 p.m., with Ocean View Association Moderator Rev. Freeman Gause in charge.

Rev. Ronnie McCrae Sr. will deliver the word in ministry. The public is invited.

Hats Off To Flythe

Ocean View's hats are off to one of its youth, Bernard Flythe, who has proven that a new generation of very positive youth is emerging in our midst. The South Brunswick High School tuba player has been chosen as a member of the McDonald's All-American High School Band.

Ocean View happily remembers the days when he served as assistant pianist for Ocean View Union's Youth Choir.

Right away hearts were filled with joy and phones began ringing to express the very fine way he has represented those of us who've always believed in him.

I can recall so vividly the remarks made by his then Senior Circle President, Mrs. Irene B. Hankins, and his mother, about how he had unshyly tapped one of his musical resources that he had not contributed prior to that time when asked in my Bible Institute Class to accompany the youth of his church instrumentally in their musical ministry.

Afterwards Youth Supervisor Arvela Marlow announced he had been asked to assist Timothy Stanley as pianist for the Union, a position he held as long as his schedule allowed.

A thanks from Ocean View to everyone who has contributed to the success of this promising youth.
